

Isolationist Victories, Defeats Cancel Out in Primaries

By the Associated Press

The roster of candidates for the November 3 elections was near completion yesterday, only conventions in Rhode Island and some run-offs in Louisiana remaining.

As the tallies in Tuesday's five State primaries were checked it was seen that incumbents for the most part had won and that nothing conclusive was proved by a candidate's attitude toward the Administration's foreign policy prior to Pearl Harbor. Some were successfully attacked. Some were not.

It was also observed that unusually light balloting marked the Nation-wide preliminaries to the big autumn show.

Excitement prevailed in New Jersey political circles. Senator Smathers (Democrat) yesterday said he had asked a Senate investigating committee to determine whether a Republican candidate had "bought" his nomination.

Submits "Figures"

Albert W. Hawkes, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, won the Republican senatorial nomination from Gill Robb Wilson, State aviation director. Smathers, who will face Hawkes in November, said at Atlantic City that he had "the figures, supported by proof, of what he (Hawkes) paid for the nomination in several of the different counties," and had submitted this material to the committee.

With all but a few districts reported Hawkes got 129,395 votes to Wilson's 126,157.

Another high light of the Jersey balloting was the close race of Representative Hartley, (Republican), who won the Tenth District renomination by only 50 votes from Mayor W. H. Williams of Belleville, who had attacked Hartley as an isolationist before Pearl Harbor.

Other congressional contests ran true to form. The only incumbents faced with primary opposition overcame it. Representatives William Sutphin, Third District Democrat, and ~~J. Bennett Thomas~~, Seventh District Republican, having an easier time than Hartley.

Lodge Wins Easily

In Massachusetts Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., easily won the Republican renomination, as did most House incumbents. Representative Democratic senatorial nominations and will oppose Lodge in the elections. Gov. Leverett Saltonstall (Republican) was renominated without contest and Mayor Roger Lowell Putnam of Springfield (Democrat) will oppose him.

The congressional career of young United States Representative Thomas H. Eliot, who helped draft the Social Security Act, was halted by the veteran, former Gov. James Michael Curley, who compiled 26,513 votes to 19,547 for Eliot to win the Democratic nomination in the Eleventh District.

All the State's nationally known United States Representatives came through with victories, except Eliot.

Michigan Republicans picked Detroit's Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson for the Senate over Gerald L. K. Smith, former Huey Long aide. Ferguson will oppose Senator Prentiss M. Brown (Democrat) in November.

Representative Clare Hoffman Republican, whose criticism of the Administration was attacked by Michigan opponents, was renominated, but Representative Tenerowicz, criticised for the same reason trailed far behind former Representative Sadowski for the Democratic nomination.

All other Michigan Congressmen were renominated.

In the 17th Congressional District Mrs. Dorothy Kemp Roosevelt, divorced wife of the late G. Hal Roosevelt, was an easy winner in a six-sided contest for the Democratic nomination. Her former husband was a brother of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

Wisconsin Republican renominated Gov. Julius Heil for a third term over the opposition of two other candidates.

Opposing him in the November election will be either Dr. W. C. Sullivan, one-time La Follette Progressive, or Gustave Keller, Democratic Party organizer, on the Democratic ticket; Orland S. Loomis, Progressive, who lost to Heil in the election two years ago by 12,000 votes, and Frank Zeidler, Milwaukee Socialist.

Wisconsin's ten representatives in Congress were renominated, four, William H. Stevenson, Lewis D. Thill, Reid F. Murray, Republicans, and B. J. Gehrmann, Progressive over opposition.

Two former Republican Representatives also were victorious in the primaries. They were Charles Hawks, who will oppose Representative Harry Sauthoff, Progressive, in the Second District and John C. Schafer, in the Fourth District, who will oppose Representative

Thaddeus Wasielewski, a Democrat and ardent Administration supporter.

In New Hampshire Senator Styles Bridges and Gov. Robert O. Blood, Republicans, were renominated. Bridges will enter the fall contest with Francis P. Murphy, Democrat, as an opponent. An upset in the State was the defeat of Representative Arthur Jenks by Chester E. Merrow, for the Republican House nomination. Merrow had charged that Jenks was an isolationist before Pearl Harbor.

Thomas A. Murray and Henry A. Proulx, Democratic nominees in the First and Second Congressional Districts, respectively, also were unopposed. In the Second District, U. S. Representative Foster Stearns, Republican, had little trouble, disposing of two newcomers, Rita Collyer and Nelson M. Cook, with scarcely a campaign.
