

Spring Worries

Mrs. Dilling

7-11-44
CHICAGO, April 13 (C.T.P.S.). Spring apparently has come to Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, militant author of "The Red Network," who is engaged in a sizzling divorce fight with her lawyer husband, Albert W. Dilling; but it's not a peaceful spring.

As a result of her husband's actions, she complained today, she hasn't been able to get her spring gardening started at her home in Kenilworth. Nor has she been able to get her spring planting started on her farm in Harvard, Ill.

Moreover, according to her complaint, there's the hogs. She can't repair the hog houses on the farm, nor purchase new hogs—and all this is important spring farm work.

The complaints are contained in an amended motion in which Mrs. Dilling is trying to dissolve an injunction obtained by her husband tying up her bank accounts and other properties.
