League for Constitutional Government and
John B. Snow

The following information comes from John Henshaw who says he had a recent conference with Snow in New York City and was given the information by Snow himself:

Snow operates the publishing firm of Madison and Marshall.

Snow said he went to considerable expense to make "The Odyssey of a Fellow Traveler" by J. B. Matthews a success either by printing the book or by promoting it. Snow gave many copies of it away.

Henshaw says he went to see Snow at the recommendation of James True.

Snow is friendly with one Bossi, of Putnam's. Henshaw had spoken to Bossi and when he subsequently saw Snow, Snow knew all about this conversation.
