Pro-Hitler, pro-Fascist, Jew-baiting Charles E. Coughlin is taking his Coughlin column underground with a direct-mail contact setup.

Coughlin plans to keep in touch with his followers and promote his ideas in personal letters, although his Social Justice, by which he spread his line, was banned from the mails May 4 as "clearly seditious."

In a letter to subscribers, Cora Quinlan, secretary-treasurer of Social Justice Publishing Co., announces that the Social Justice mailing list will be given to Coughlin. (See illustration on right.)

This fulfile the promise made to Social.

This fulfils the promise made to Social Justice readers by Miss Quinlan last April when she wrote to them that "should the Federal Government decide to deny Social Justice its second-class mailing privilege, we will be glad to make further arrangements with you."

with you."

PM predicted on Apr. 15 that Social Justice was planning to go underground.

The letter to subscribers brought up an interesting mystery about Social Justice finances. Miss Quinlan pleads poverty for the disbanded publication stating that "our assets are probably insufficient to pay income taxes and refund all unearned subscriptions."

She hints Past mould all unearned subscriptions.

She hints that maybe subscribers would rather not have their money back, suggest-

"... We wish to refund your unearned subscription, unless you indicate otherwise n an answer to this letter."

The mystery: the letter indicates that Social Justice was operating at a loss. Who was naking up the deficit? Whose money will Coughlin use to "see to it that all subscribers receive the unearned subscription noneys due them," as Miss Quinlan assures ubscribers?

For the first time it was also revealed hat the real reason Social Justice stopped sublication was because no printer would ake the job after Attorney General Biddle and given an official opinion calling the publication "clearly seditious."

Miss Quinlan reported in the letter that, wen after the Apr. 27 issue was declared unmailable (so was the Apr. 20 issue), the taff went right ahead preparing the May issue.

But by this time their typesetters the The mystery: the letter indicates that Sotaff went right ahead preparing the May issue.

But by this time their typesetters, the mold-Powers Co. of Detroit, refused to set he type and no printer could be found to un off the issue.

Last week PM revealed that Coughlin was rganizing a high school to spread his teachigs among young boys who are supposed to e trained "for post-war service, particularly regard to our country's close relationship of South America."
