

It's Poppa's Sheet

Father Coughlin says the weekly Social Justice, which he founded, doesn't belong to him any more. He says it belongs to his mamma and poppa, Thomas and Amelia Coughlin (above). But is he mad because Social Justice has been barred from the mails!

Biddle Sees Further Ban New York Times on Coughlin

Atty. Gen. Francis Biddle today expressed opinion that the U. S. Government has sufficient war-time powers to halt all circulation of the mails-banned Social Justice magazine even by express shipment.

Mr. Biddle said a complete investigation of the publication's backing, circulation, policy and possible Axis tie-ups would be undertaken next week by the Federal grand jury investigating Axis propaganda.

The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, founder, who now claims no official connection with the magazine other than that his father and mother are understood to hold controlling stock interest, may be among the witnesses called.

In Detroit he expressed willingness to answer to Biddle's charge that Social Justice editorials have been a "series of systematic seditious utterances," closely paralleling Axis propaganda lines.
