THE SPY MENACE!

J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the F.B.I.

DEFINITELY there is a spy menace in the United States, authority for the statement being J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation, who has been charged with the duty of curbing the activities of spies and saboteurs. The head of the G-Men has written a series of six articles which will appear in THIS WEEK, The Sunday Star's interesting magazine. He tells of the filming of secret maneuvers of the Flying Fortresses by an agent of a foreign government, of the plotting by a beautiful woman who sought through social lobbying to obtain American defense secrets, and other incidents. The series will open the eyes of all readers to the nature and extent of the fifth column activities in this country.

Other interesting articles in THIS WEEK will include an opinion by Big Bill Tilden concerning what is wrong with amateur tennis, an exciting story by Richard Powell about the Naval flying service and other outstanding fiction. There will be, also, the usual articles on beauty, manners and home-making by Sylvia Blythe, Emily Post and Grace Turner. Get the habit of THIS WEEK EVERY WEEK.
