Boake Carter, columnist whose writings appear in the Los Angeles Examiner, has the distinction of being the first prominent American writer picked by the Nazis to spread their isolationist propaganda through.

Reprints of one of Carter's columns, headed "Cruel Deceptions - Misinformation - Professional Liars," are distributed by the Nazi Bund at every meeting at the Deutsches Haus.

A typical paragraph is this one: "Take the present incident in Europe (annexation of the Sudetenland), for instance. We find Leftists, masquerading under the deceptive titles of organizations established for preservation of democracy, peace and freedom, marching up and down, picket-fashion, before German consulates in the United States."
