

Silver Legion Paper Aided By Society Women's Money

Pro-Nazi Pelley Obtained Cash From Leaders, Bankruptcy Papers Reveal

By LEON M. SILER
Names very familiar to Manhattan society and the upper crusts of other cities appear on stockholder records of William Dudley Pelley's "Galahad Press," anti-Semitic and pro-Nazi publishing agency which has just gone into receivership at Asheville, N. C.

Well-to-do women, most of them apparently attracted to Pelley by his professions of belief in spiritualism and psychic powers, contributed generously to his publishing expenses. Or perhaps they were not all publishing expenses.

For instance:
Over in Newark is the Contemporary Club. It's as elite as clubs get to be—intellectually as well as fashionably. A past president of the Contemporary, Mrs. Marie M. Ogden, widow of a Prudential Insurance Company official, aided Pelley handsomely.

Furnishes "Truth Center"
Her name was included in a list of stockholders which Pelley published last October in his weekly periodical, Liberation. Later it was said Mrs. Ogden, in addition to investing $1,400 in Galahad Press

SOCIETY FOLK AID PRO-NAZI PAPER

Women Leaders Furnish Cash as Silver Legion Sheet Attacks Roosevelt

Continued from Page One

stock, supplied Pelley with securities worth thousands of dollars—some of his friends placed the amount as high as twenty thousand. So enamored was Mrs. Ogden of Pelley's psychic doctrines, her friends relate, that she fitted up her home elaborately as a "Truth Center" to carry on spiritualist teachings. She also obtained use of the Contemporary club rooms, it is said, for meetings of her followers. Mrs. Ogden, her resources much reduced, finally left Newark to establish a new "truth center" in the desolate little town of Moab, Utah, according to her acquaintances.

Women Give the Money
Mrs. Lillian E. Terry, who lives at 131 East Sixty-sixth Street, Manhattan, also was listed as a Galahad Press stockholder. Mrs. Terry, relative of Social Registerites, was with Mrs. Ogden an admirer of Pelley's spiritualist professions rather than his more recently exploited racial ones, she has said. She told of supplying him with several hundred dollars. She was not sure, an interviewer reported, whether she received any stock certificates in return.

The list which Pelley published last October was in accordance with postal law requirements. It contained fifteen names and nine or ten appeared to be those of women.

Two women were named along with Pelley as the three incorporators when Galahad Press took out a New York State charter in February, 1931. They were Mary Joyce Benner and Olive E. Robbins. The address given for all three was 299 Madison Avenue.

The women were employees of Pelley at that time, it is understood.

Crude, Childish Pages
No less fantastic than Pelley's success in obtaining funds from women of high social standing have been the literary emanations from the publishing house which these funds enabled him to set up.

Pages of Liberation, the magazine which he began issuing from Asheville, for a time carried much of his mysticism and his anti-Jewish, anti-Rooseveltian, anti-Communistic fulminations rehashed in the form of Biblical verse.

These pages were absurdly crude, juvenile. They did not have even the moronic appeal of some of Liberation's prose.

Hooray for Dr. Wirt
On an upper corner of these pages, in Italic type, appeared this cryptography: "Out of the vastness of Cosmos the Psychic Antennae tunes in a voice. If the Word was made flesh and spake once to men, how much stronger may be its pronouncement when the handicaps of flesh are perished? If we cannot believe this, to whom or what shall we look for authorship of commitments like the following."

Dr. Wirt found a friend in Liberation. Pelley—or whoever writes the Silver Shirt publication's literary convulsions—said of the Gary schoolmaster's first blast, warning of American Kerenskys and Stalins: "The ominous clouds of economic and social chaos which have been curdling blacker and blacker above the nation since October, 1929, parted for a fleeting instant in Washington on Friday, March 24th, and a shaft of real light reached eyes so blinded by camouflaged skull-duggery that they could scarcely recognize what they were beholding."

9,000 Subscribers
"Then as swiftly the servile publicists for the marplots closed that brief cloudrift and a befogged and outraged press started to wither the episode with scorn."
This was followed by an apparent bid by Pelley to be summoned to Washington as a witness in the Wirt case. There would have been obvious publicity advantages.

N. Y. E. Post 4/21/34

The weekly foamings from Pelley's Silver Shirt and "Foundation for Christian Economics" headquarters probably will continue, despite the Galahad Press receivership. While Liberation is shown by the Galahad Press records to have obtained only 9,000 subscribers so far, membership in the Silver Shirts is said to have spurted recently, and the magazine is a valuable aid in the promotion of such an organization—Ku Klux-like, Fascist-like, Nazi-like, yet with an individuality all its own.

National Credit Plot
In Liberation's most recent issue Pelley gives warning that Congress soon will receive a bill representing the culmination of the Jewish-Rooseveltian-brain trust "machinations to complete control of the people of these United States, while at the same time instituting what may be a temporary era of greater prosperity."

It's to be labeled the national credit issue bill, so Liberation says, providing for "a system of credit slips which will count as discounts on all purchases whether of groceries, industrial machinery, or daily transportation, to be turned in to the bank designated by the Secretary of the Treasury, whereupon it may be drawn upon as lawful money—the bank to be reimbursed directly from the United States Treasury."

The Secretary of the Treasury would control the discount rate, Pelley solemnly adds.

Nearly all of the anti-Hoover, anti-Roosevelt, anti-Federal Reserve, anti-everything outbursts in Congress by Representative Louis T. McFadden of Pennsylvania have been reproduced in Liberation.

Pelley has given much in days gone by to the "Christ Democracy," which—so he says—is to be America's form of government some future day. It is to bring "a complete metamorphosis of our present institutions along more wholesome lines."

The big idea is creation by law of the Great Corporation of the United States. All common stock is to go to native-born citizens, who alone shall exercise voting power. These holders of common stock will get a dividend of $83.33 per month in perpetuity, to safeguard them from hunger.

Lost Atlantis Is Found
Preferred stock is to be issued too, to reward the more efficient of the populace. A single form of government check is to be used for currency. There will be no taxes, no rents. All citizens will be in a Federal Civil Service.

This governmental system "endured in purity for 300,000 years in Atlantis," says Pelley—perhaps feeling the effects, on this particular occasion, of the winelike, rarified air of the mountainous Asheville vicinity.

War with Japan, the gold standard, the "mystery of the Civil War and Lincoln's death," the recognition of Russia—these are some of Pelley's standard themes for recurring articles.

Silver Legion Paper Aided By Society Women's Money

Pro-Nazi Pelley Obtained Cash From Leaders, Bankruptcy Papers Reveal

N. Y. E. Post 4/21/34

By LEON M. SILER
Names very familiar to Manhattan society and the upper crusts of other cities appear on stockholder records of William Dudley Pelley's "Galahad Press," anti-Semitic and pro-Nazi publishing agency which has just gone into receivership at Asheville, N. C.

Well-to-do women, most of them apparently attracted to Pelley by his professions of belief in spiritualism and psychic powers, contributed generously to his publishing expenses. Or perhaps they were not all publishing expenses.

For instance:
Over in Newark is the Contemporary Club. It's as elite as clubs get to be—intellectually as well as fashionably. A past president of the Contemporary, Mrs. Marie M. Ogden, widow of a Prudential Insurance Company official, aided Pelley handsomely.

Furnishes "Truth Center"
Her name was included in a list of stockholders which Pelley published last October in his weekly periodical, Liberation. Later it was said Mrs. Ogden, in addition to investing $1,400 in Galahad Press

SOCIETY FOLK AID PRO-NAZI PAPER

Women Leaders Furnish Cash as Silver Legion Sheet Attacks Roosevelt

Continued from Page One

stock, supplied Pelley with securities worth thousands of dollars—some of his friends placed the amount as high as twenty thousand. So enamored was Mrs. Ogden of Pelley's psychic doctrines, her friends relate, that she fitted up her home elaborately as a "Truth Center" to carry on spiritualist teachings. She also obtained use of the Contemporary club rooms, it is said, for meetings of her followers. Mrs. Ogden, her resources much reduced, finally left Newark to establish a new "truth center" in the desolate little town of Moab, Utah, according to her acquaintances.

Women Give the Money
Mrs. Lillian E. Terry, who lives at 131 East Sixty-sixth Street, Manhattan, also was listed as a Galahad Press stockholder. Mrs. Terry, relative of Social Registerites, was with Mrs. Ogden an admirer of Pelley's spiritualist professions rather than his more recently exploited racial has said. She told of supplying him with several hundred dollars. She was not sure, an interviewer reported, whether she received any stock certificates in return.

The list which Pelley published last October was in accordance with postal law requirements. It contained fifteen names and nine or ten appeared to be those of women.

Two women were named along with Pelley as the three incorporators when Galahad Press took out a New York State charter in February, 1931. They were Mary Joyce Benner and Olive E. Robbins. The address given for all three was 299 Madison Avenue.

The women were employees of Pelley at that time, it is understood.

Crude, Childish Pages
No less fantastic than Pelley's success in obtaining funds from women of high social standing have been the literary emanations from the publishing house which these funds enabled him to set up.

Pages of Liberation, the magazine which he began issuing from Asheville, for a time carried much of his mysticism and his anti-Jewish, anti-Rooseveltian, anti-Communistic fulminations rehashed in the form of Biblical verse.

These pages were absurdly crude, juvenile. They did not have even the moronic appeal of some of Liberation's prose.

Hooray for Dr. Wirt

On an upper corner of these pages, in italic type, appeared this cryptography: "Out of the vastness of Cosmos the Psychic Antennae tunes in a voice. If the Word was made flesh and spake once to men, how much stronger may be its pronouncement when the handicaps of flesh are perished? If we cannot believe this, to whom or what shall we look for authorship of commitments like the following."

Dr. Wirt found a friend in Liberation. Pelley—or whoever writes the Silver Shirt publication's literary convulsions—said of the Gary schoolmaster's first blast, warning of American Kerenskys and Stalins: "The ominous clouds of economic and social chaos which have been curdling blacker and blacker above the nation since October, 1929, parted for a fleeting instant in Washington on Friday, March 24th, and a shaft of real light reached eyes so blinded by camouflaged skull-duggery that they could scarcely recognize what they were beholding."

9,000 Subscribers

"Then as swiftly the servile publicists for the marplots closed that brief cloudrift and a befogged and outraged press started to wither the episode with scorn."

This was followed by an apparent bid by Pelley to be summoned to Washington as a witness in the Wirt case. There would have been obvious publicity advantages.

The weekly foamings from Pelley's Silver Shirt and "Foundation for Christian Economics" headquarters probably will continue, despite the Galahad Press receivership. While Liberation is shown by the Galahad Press records to have obtained only 9,000 subscribers so far, membership in the Silver Shirts is said to have spurted recently, and the magazine is a valuable aid in the promotion of such an organization—Ku Klux-like, Fascist-like, Nazi-like, yet with an individuality all its own.

National Credit Plot

In Liberation's most recent issue Pelley gives warning that Congress soon will receive a bill representing the culmination of the Jewish-Rooseveltian-brain trust "machinations to complete control of the people of these United States, while at the same time instituting what may be a temporary era of greater prosperity."

It's to be labeled the national credit issue bill, so Liberation says, providing for "a system of credit slips which will count as discounts on all purchases whether of groceries, industrial machinery, or daily transportation, to be turned in to the bank designated by the Secretary of the Treasury, whereupon it may be drawn upon as lawful money—the bank to be reimbursed directly from the United States Treasury."

The Secretary of the Treasury would control the discount rate, Pelley solemnly adds.

Nearly all of the anti-Hoover, anti-Roosevelt, anti-Federal Reserve, anti-everything outbursts in Congress by Representative Louis T. McFadden of Pennsylvania have been reproduced in Liberation.

Pelley has biven much in days gone by: the "Christ Democracy," which—so he says—is to be America's form of government some future day. It is to bring "a complete metamorphosis of our present institutions along more wholesome lines."

The big idea is creation by law of the Great Corporation of the United States. All common stock is to go to native-born citizens, who alone shall exercise voting power. These holders of common stock will get a dividend of $83.33 per month in perpetuity, to safeguard them from hunger.

Lost Atlantis Is Found

Preferred stock is to be issued too, to reward the more efficient of the populace. A single form of government check is to be used for currency. There will be no taxes, no rents. All citizens will be in a Federal Civil Service.

This governmental system "endured in purity for 300,000 years in Atlantis," says Pelley—perhaps feeling the effects, on this particular occasion, of the winelike, rarified air of the mountainous Asheville vicinity.

War with Japan, the gold standard, the "mystery of the Civil War and Lincoln's death," the recognition of Russia—these are some of Pelley's standard themes for recurring articles.