Commissioner David B. Head turned to U. S. Attorney William Palmer and said: "I suggest a complaint be filed against Wiedemann. A consular representative has diplomatic im-munity so long as he does not step outside his consular duties. The facts here show, however, that Hoehne personally delivered mail to several German consu-lates. "Wiedemann must have known lates.

"Wiedemann must have known he had not registered. In view of these overt acts, he has de-nied himself any consular courte-sies which may be extended." Head also demanded a warrant be issued for " a Mr. Loeper," said to be chancellor of the German consulate at San Francisco. Hoehne, when arrested, bore a letter signed by Wiedemann.' The letter explained that he was carrying mail to the consulates at Mexico City, Panama and Guate-mala; that the packs were sealed, and thus immune to search. and thus immune to search.

and thus immune to search. Wiedmann was sent to San Francisco personally by Adolf Hit-ler. He was Hitler's captain in the World War and, until his transfer abroad was Hitler's personal ad-jutant. He is a chum of the mys-terious "Princess Steffie" Hohen-lohe, who once was liaison agent between the Nazi leaders and Brit-ish appeasers.
