

Dear Jim, this envelope and C.A.75-1996

6/27/77

What does not relate to the status call is loose and separate so you can ignore it temporarily.

What does relate is of several periods beginning when the need to do something became clear. It was not done when I was in the best state of mind for it. As you will see it is unsorted. I think it says what I'd like you to see.

Then there is what I've put together of the recent documents only. I do not yet have those you received 6/24. I'll be getting them in a couple of hours. I hope to go over them and bring copies for you of what I find in them. If Ed gets them copied today I'll do that tomorrow and hope to be in Thursday.

On the samples, which really are only a few illustrations of the record following my complaints, I've appended brief comments. I think also a brief introductory part.

I spent most of the time on the stuff about me as though you were delivering it. I do think that this has come to the significant stage where you do not want to depend on recall and losing papers as easily happens at the podium. (I recall it happening to me.) I do believe you should have this part in writing and a check list of the rest. This can be a crucial point. Preparing will be much easier in the end.

I think there are two sets on everything, one you can had the linetacher if he bothers.

There is no time for me to go over the 9-page statement on the books and me. I was finished this draft when I saw I'd forgotten those later ones relating to the extradition papers. They are separate, without commentary. I think they are limited to this and in pairs.

Return any copies you do not use or need, please. May save 'til time later.

There is what I've skimmed only and will include, a letter from Howard relating to compliance in general and particularly to my overdue requests. It may be in the black batch I have loose so I'll enclose some over-exposed copies Ed is making now because the original is so pale. They be will the 1998 stuff.

Sorry. In such a rush to get to John's forgot this. But we'll be talking and I'll have this as reminder. If I remember it.

Best,
