Re: Weisberg v. Bell, et al.
Civil Action No. 75-2155

Dear Mr. Metcalfe:

You have asked that I supplement my earlier letter requesting attorney fees in connection with the above case by also providing you with the amount we are requesting as compensation for the costs of bringing the action. The total amount of costs which we are claiming comes to $202.17, which I believe is almost exactly the sum I mentioned as a rough estimate at our January conference.

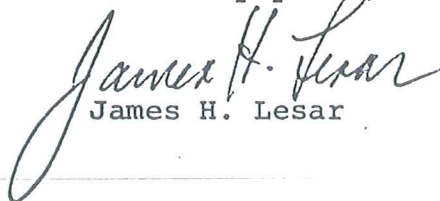

The breakdown for this figure is as follows:

$ 67.60	(my xeroxing--676 pages)
12.00	(Weisberg's xeroxing of his affidavit--120 pages)
68.34	(My phone call's to Weisberg and Paul Hoch of of Berkeley, California)
8.38	(Weisberg's phone calls to me)
10.00	(Filing fee)
12.00	(U.S. Marshal)
2.50	(Transcript of Gesell's ruling)
9.45	(roundtrip bus ticket, Frederick, Md.-Washington, D.C.)
10.00	(Weisberg taxi fare, house to bus station and reverse)
1.90	(Weisberg taxi fare, bus station to courthouse)

TOTAL: 202.17

There are some other items for which claim might be made, such as the time Mrs. Weisberg expended in typing Mr. Weisberg's affidavit, but if this matter can be settled administratively, we will not press them.

Sincerely yours,

James H. Lesar
