

Dear Jim,

6/1/80

I did not do my required exercising this morning. Instead I kept working on the Cole spectro brief and I have just come to the middle of the last page, 20. However, I will not be able to start reading and correcting it this evening because I have to take Lil shopping and I must get a prescription refilled. In the morning I ~~had~~<sup>have</sup> a medical appointment (eyes) and later I must provide local transportation for my 92-year old mother-in-law. I may not be able to get to the reading and correcting at all tomorrow and having missed this required walking two of the past three days and missing it again tomorrow, I simply must begin the day after with it. However, I'll get it copied and to you as fast as possible.

For unalloyed mendacity, it is time Cole has exceeded his previous highs, which are moral and ethical lows. I think the question of the unfaithfulness to fact has to be put squarely to the appeals court, for all the delicacy<sup>C</sup> that may require and the problems entailed in it.

This has got to stop at some point and it won't stop until a strong effort is made to end it and make it too costly for that stable of perjurers and suborners of perjury.

The memo, which you can expand upon, I'm sure, can also be used for other possible purposes, like Congressional committees.

If I can get it done in time to make outgoing mail Friday you should have it Monday morning. I hope to be able to get this in tonight's outgoing.

Hastily,
