Dear Recipient:

We seem to have accepted official lying and the press ordinarily does not report even official lying to the courts, it is that commonplace. However, the importance as repressive precedent of the lawsuit about which I've been informing you is, I believe, great and I therefore provide this additional and self-explanatory information I am filing with the appeals court. At the very least, if not overturned, this decision has an enormous impact on access to information and on FOIA, which it may, for practical purposes, gut when the information sought can be embarrassing to officialdom.

Given the pointedness with which I attributed deliberate lying by the FBI and Department of Justice to the appeals court in what I filed and sent you earlier, I find it incredible that in another of its recent filings, of which it did not send me a copy, it did precisely that again in gross and prejudicial misrepresentation of what I filed. It simply boggles the mind that, with that court having what I filed, the government would deliberately misrepresent it, but as you will see from the enclosed and its attachments, it did.

Because no copy was provided to me, on January 30 I sent you my interpretation of the potential of what I had been told. Only what the court does or does not do or say provides the ultimate answer.

Ordinarily and properly the court does not approve extensions of time and space and I therefore have not filed or attached for you additional previously withheld FBI records consistent with and adding to those attached to the first addition to my petition.
