Dear Mother
-well, we community level, many and English advocated a centralized state which would later "wither away".

But in this ~~many~~ English was mistaken again.

as history has shown time again the state remains and grows whereas true democracy can be practiced only at the local level, while the ~~state~~ centralized state, administrative, political or supervisory remains this can be no <sup>real</sup> democracy

(a loose confederation of communities at a national level with <sup>only</sup> centralized state what so ever.

in equal division ~~and~~, with safe guards against collection of communities there can be democracy, not in a centralized state delegating authority but in numerous equal, ~~small~~ <sup>independent</sup> progressive states separately ~~also~~ - communities practicing and developing democracy at the local level.
