to attend means a 70% turnout of the entire population. Stingers or late rises walking. Though the streets may be renumerously jammed into the streets, idea of workers by the point of voluntary aid. From bonded militia, anyone who argues may be subject to close investigation later on, a thing to be avoided in any police state.

In roughly the same way a 90% majority of votes to voting population is always bundled into voting for the one candidate per one post, one party system, in the Soviet Union. Before state republics, or city elections, a committee cables at the residence of each and every person in the city, he might be regarding the residence of eligible voters voting throughout the USSR is 16 years. age, sex, place of work he instructs that all eligible voters, where, where and how to vote, he can explain. He calls the candidates, although he is forbidden by law, to hand for one or the other, and insures the prospective voter that his name will be on the voting register located at the poll which he must sign before voting by secret ballot. At the voting poll after signing the register, a person will receive a voting slip with the names of all candidates for different post. He may either place an X next to his choice or strike out any name he doesn't like or write in any name he wishes, names written into the ballot are counted about noon or he elected to the post of office in this manner, it may, however, mean that this person will be a candidate for a chosen post sometime in the future elections, all candidates are approved by the central committee of the Communist Party although a candidate does not necessarily have to be a Communist Party member he may be non-party although the system in the USSR insures that no person rises to any height at all without being approved by the party. Even if he has never made an application for the party, at the 22nd congress KPCU Khrushchev revealed that out of a population of 270 million 9 and one half million persons are members of the Communist party, that is less than 10% of the total population actually engaged in production, not counting children and pensioners, etc.

But in order to get a flavor the workers show they think and hope and have built a will like examples from the lower and middle and upper age groups. Starting with the lower.
