

Assassination

Dear Sir:

This is another fan letter; I'm sure you receive many similar in content. It is just a shame that a country such as ours, which has been fought for so gallantly over the last few centuries, should be so full of corruption. That the police force of one of its largest cities should be suspect in having something to do with the death of a president. More than suspect; it's an unproven fact. Unproven but not unprovable. Believe me, there are decent people in this country who will not rest until the truth about Kennedy's death is known. You can have them killed and cover up the deaths but others will carry on. It's too bad the President himself isn't above suspicion so that he could step in and insure an honest investigation. Someone's money is paying off your bullies. You have not been caught but the people are not unaware of your deeds.
