

(3)

351

proven this latter circumstance could well motivate a sincere reassessment among Americans and even the world of the tensions which contribute to the hatreds basically responsible for senseless acts of violence. By playing God, you have rendered this possibility most remote.

If you consider the foregoing idealistic reminder that Mr.
Kennedy himself asked us to make a "beginning" and from the real reason for his death we might have made that beginning and rendered his sacrifice purposeful.

I could go on at length about the travesty of your act upon our conception of law and justice, but will ask you only one further question - having demonstrated conclusively your lack of faith in the ultimate justice of our system should not you, if anyone, forfeit the right to trial? Well, try it.

25A