Joyce Lee Witherspoon McDonald, an exotic dancer employed by subject, advised Detective Bob Carroll of the Dallas Police Department and Tony Zoppi, a reporter with the "Dallas Morning News," were friends with the subject as each had come to the club on numerous occasions and gone to the subject's office to discuss matters with him. All information in the possession of these individuals must be obtained.

Reagan Turman, Los Angeles, California, has stated he believed he heard the name of J. D. Tippit mentioned by the subject and he knows the subject is a good friend with one Lt. Arnett any knowledge of association between subject and Officer Tippit.

Mrs. Paul Calgrove, Houston, an exotic dancer, advised the husband of a former landlady in Dallas was LeRoy Hulse, a uniformed patrolman of the Dallas Police Department. Contact Hulse in order to resolve this fact and obtain all information in his possession.

Don Tabon alleged that in early February, 1963, he was attacked by the subject at the Adolphus Hotel, filed a complaint against the subject and received a telephone call at his home from a detective, whose first name was believed to be Tommy, suggesting that he drop the complaint against the subject. Attempt to identify this detective obtaining the circumstances surrounding this matter and his association with the subject.

Rerep contains a listing of individuals possessing permanent pass cards to the Carousel Club.
