Maddox Sued

ATLANTA — A $205,000 damage suit brought against Gov. Lester Maddox of Georgia claims the "coercive power" of his office is being wielded to help organized religion.

The suit was filed Wednesday by Atlanta night club owners who are attempting to test the constitutionality of Georgia laws banning Sabbath liquor sales and a statute prohibiting public dancing on Sunday.

Exemplary damages amounting to $200,000 are being sought from Maddox's personal funds, plus $5000 in State funds to cover the cost of liquor confiscated 11 days ago in an Atlanta night club, the Sans Souci. State agents placed about 300 patrons at the plush club under temporary house arrest and confiscated about $5000 in liquor.
