0-19 (Rev. 5-12-76)		Assoc, Div Dep. AD Adm
		Dop. AD lav. Asst. Dir.s Adm. Serv Ext. Affairs Fin. & P.s.
		Gon. Yw. 4
		Inspection Infell 10 - 10 90 (-4 - H Laboratory
		NOT RECORDED Legal Coun.
		141 JAN 81 1977 Rec. Mgmt Spec. Inv
		Training
	THE WASHINGTON POST	Thursday, Jenuary 20, 1977 F27 LQ
Jack Anderson and I
CIA Tied to	False Oswal	d Story
. The Central Intelligence Agency	transcripts why the CIA would want to	said Morris Rishon naid him a humn asked one of its Cuban operatives to help fabricate a story about Lee Harvey Oswald during the investiga-	fabricate this evidence. Perhaps the CIA could have sought to tie Kennedy's killer to the Castro government.	$253,000 in cash for past services. Callgirl Trade—Women who take tion of the John F. Kennedy assassina- tion, the Cuban has told congressional investigators.	in any event, the CIA agent called off the scheme, and Mr. X "never did	most other career seekers who want to get ahead in life, are looking for
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had	talk to his cousin," according to a summary of the interview. It should be stressed that the interview in no way	higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle.
met the accused assassin in Dallas in	implicator the CTA is the Personal Lill the company of a CIA agent three months before Kennedy was killed.	implicates the CIA in the Kennedy kill- ing. The mystery witness first met his	tors" that lead women into prostitu-
months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life.	ing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with	tors" that lead women into prostitu- tion. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxnayers'.
months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him	Ing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime	tors" that lead women into prostitu- tion. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers' expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington. Dr. Jen-
months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was	ing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an	tors that lead women into prostitu- tion. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jen- nifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why women be-
months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact	ing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a	tors that lead women into prostitu- tion. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jen- nifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why women be- come prostitutes. Their findings will of be published shortly in a 32-page docu- ment, which has been bootlegged to me
months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidertial statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The	ing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's	tors that lead women into prostitu- tion. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jen- nifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why women be- come prostitutes. Their findings will a be published shortly in a 32-page docu- ment, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prosti-
months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidertial statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained	ing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X'had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to	tors" that lead women into prostitu- tion. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers' expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jen- nifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why women be- come prostitutes. Their findings will a be published shortly in a 32-page docu- ment, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prosti- tutes for the sume underlying motives es that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from
months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidertial statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized	ing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chile,	tors that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why wonen become prostitutes. Their findings will obe published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling.
months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized the CIA agent's companion after seeing Oswald on television following	ing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chile, Mr. X tried again to knock him off. The plotters included a Venezuelan se-	tors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why women become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling. For the pay, there are "virtually no other occupations available" to women
months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized the CIA agent's companion after seeing Oswald on television following the Kennedy assassination. Not long afterward, the CIA contact made a strange request of Mr. X.	ing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X'had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chile, Mr. X tried again to knock him off. The plotters included a Venezuelan security agent, named Luis Posada Carriles, who was supposed to provide forged documents laying the blame on	tors that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why wonen become prostitutes. Their findings will obe published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires ittile schooling. For the pay, there are "virtually no other occupations available" to women of modest skills, the researchers note.
months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidertial statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized the CIA agent's companion after seeing Oswald on television following the Kennedy assassination. Not long afterward, the CIA contact made a strange request of Mr. X. There had been a report that Oswald had met a Cupan couple in Mexico. "You have a cousin working for Cuban"	ing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chile, Mr. X tried again to knock him off. The plotters included a Venezuelan security agent, named Luis Posada Carriles, who was supposed to provide	tors that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why women become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling. For the pay, there are "virtually no other occupations available" to women of modest skills, the researchers note. They conclude that prostitution will flourish as long as there is "a consumer demand." As they just it, "Economics is the pervasive theme of pros-
months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized the CIA agent's companion after seeing Oswald on television following the Kennedy assassination. Not long afterward, the CIA contact made a strange request- of Mr. X. There had been a report that Oswald had met a Cupan couple in Mexico. "You have a cousin working for Cuban intelligence in Mexico," the CIA agent said. "Why don't you just ask him, say-	ing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chile, Mr. X tried again to knock him off. The plotters included a Venezuelan security agent, named Luis Posada Carriles, who was supposed to provide forged documents laying the blame on the Soviets. This plot, too, fell through. Only a few weeks ago, the same Posada was indicted in Venezuela on murder charges in connection with the crash of a Cuban jetliner.	tors that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why wonen become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling. For the pay, there are "virtually no other occupations available" to women of modest skills, the researchers note. They conclude that prostitution will flourish as long as there is "a consumer demand." As they jut it, "Economics is the pervasive theme of prostitution."
months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidertial statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized the CIA agent's companion after seeing Oswald on television following the Kennedy assassination. Not long afterward, the CIA contact made a strange request of Mr. X. There had been a report that Oswald had met a Cuban couple in Mexico. "You have a cousin working for Cuban intelligence in Mexico," the CIA agent said. "Why don't you just ask him, saying we'll bribe him, if he said it was really him that Oswald met."	ing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chile, Mr. X tried again to knock him off. The plotters included a Venezuelan security agent, named Luis Posada Carriles, who was supposed to provide forged documents laying the blame on the Soviets. This plot, too, fell through. Only a few weeks ago, the same Posada was indicted in Venezuela on murder charges in connection with	tors that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why wonen become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling. For the pay, there are "virtually no other occupations available" to women of modest skills, the researchers note. They conclude that prostitution will flourish as long as there is "a consumer demand." As they put it, "Economics is the pervasive theme of prostitution."