Gentlemen:

*ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT
JOHN F. KENNEDY*

Having listened to television and radio reports and reading newspapers accounts of the assassination of our late President, I have yet to understand one thing and it is still puzzling me.

Why hadn't the interrogators of "Oswald" thought of "pumping his stomach" after all the questioning failed? From all reports there were remains of chicken left in the room where the assassin fired the shots. That was the first thing that came to my mind and I thought it would certainly help to incriminate him.

I wonder why the Dallas police didn't do that?

I just had to write you to see if there is an answer to my question.

Very truly yours,

Mrs. Jerry P. O'Leary
