M. A. Jones to Wick Memo

that as such, McNamara is a very great danger to the welfare of our country and he desired to prove his belief by having the Director accompany him to Robert McNamara's office in the Pentagon where he would arrange to obtain a sample of McNamara's blood. Said it will be found that McNamara has no blood and that in fact his veins are filled with saline solution. He also alleged that another test of the diabolical character of McNamara is that, unlike normal people, McNamara's eyes glow in the dark and/could also employ this test in the Director's presence to prove his contention.

It was carefully explained to that Mr. Hoover would not have the authority to conduct such an experiment on a Cabinet member and that the only executive capable to order it is the President of the United States. He agreed and asked the directions to the Office of the Secret Service where he might be able to arrange an appointment with the President.

After he departed, O'Beirne telephonically advised Secret Service Special Agent Kenneth Giannoules at 11:45 a.m. of impending visit and furnished complete details. In addition, SAO Beirne telephonically furnished the above information the Bureau's Liaison Section for appropriate dissemination to the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

On January 4, 1967, Special Agent Orrin H. Bartlett, Liaison Section, advised that had appeared at the Secret Service
Office on January 3, 1967, and after an interview, he was confined for observation to Saint Elizabeths Hospital.

Prior to the above, Secret Service furnished the Bureau by letter dated 12-28-66, a copy of Setter of 12-27-66, which he had also had directed to James J. Rowley, Director of the United States Secret Service.

RECOMMENDATION:

For information. A letterhead memorandum regarding contact on 1-3-67. is attached for appropriate dissemination by liaison to Secret Service and to the Department of Defense.
