Was it the FBI or the local police who captured the convicted killer of Martin Luther King Jr.?—Arturo S., Little Rock.

Neither. The Canadian Mounted Police recognized a photograph of the suspect, James Earl Ray, in a passport application submitted under the alias Eric Starvo Galt. By transmitting photos and fingerprints to London, the Mounties' alertness led to the capture of the killer just as his plane was about to take off from Heathrow Airport to Brussels, thus helping to break one of the most headlined assassinations in history.
