Washington Insiders Are Talking About Story Calling...

Jack Ruby and Lee Oswald Pals

Washington, D.C. (AP) — A story in a Washington newspaper that Jack Ruby and Lee Harvey Oswald were pals has caused a stir among insiders. The story, which appeared in the Washington Post, claimed that the two men were close friends and that Ruby had helped Oswald in the days leading up to the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. The story also mentioned that Ruby had been seen with Oswald in the days before the shooting. The article was widely discussed in Washington circles, with many people questioning the accuracy of the information. Some insiders suggested that the story might be a fabrication, while others believed it could be true. The story has also been picked up by other news outlets, further fueling the speculation.

He Takes Nap & Is Trapped 8 Days in a Shaft

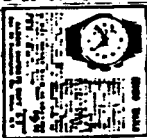

A man who fell into a shaft while taking a nap has been trapped for eight days. The incident occurred in a construction site where the man was working. He fell through a hole in the ground and became stuck. The workers discovered him after several hours of searching. He was rescued and taken to a hospital, where he is recovering from his injuries. The incident has raised concerns about safety protocols on construction sites.

8 IN A CUB

Eight people were trapped in a cub during a fire. The fire broke out in a small room, and the people inside were unable to escape. They were rescued after several hours of effort. The incident has led to a review of fire safety measures in small, enclosed spaces.

Doctors Train 2 Doctors Off

Two doctors were removed from their positions after a training exercise. The exercise was designed to test the doctors' ability to handle emergency situations. However, the two doctors performed poorly and were deemed unfit for their roles. The hospital has announced that they will be replaced by other qualified medical professionals.
