Author to talk on assassination of JFK today

Dr. Josiah Thompson, a critic of the Warren Commission report on the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, will speak at 2 p.m. today in Beury Hall 166, on his book "Six Seconds in Dallas."

The lecture is sponsored by the Lecture Bureau of the Student Union Board.

After conducting what he calls a "microanalysis" of the events of Nov. 22, 1963, Thompson came to the conclusion that three assassins fired four shots from three different locations.

He bases his conclusions on previously unpublished photographs taken on the scene of the assassination and new interpretations of photographs and films taken on the day of the assassination and used by the Warren Commission.

Thompson is an assistant professor of philosophy at Haverford College. He has studied at Oxford, the University of Copenhagen and Yale.

He became interested in doing a book on the assassination when he was a member of the Life magazine research team on the death of Pres. Kennedy.
