0-19 (Rev. 5-12-76)		'Assoc. Dir Dep. AD Adm.
		Dep. AD lav. Asst. Direc
		Adm. Serv
		Gen. J.v
		Inspection
	e de la composition de la composition La composition de la composition de la La composition de la	NOT RECORDED Legal Coun. Plan. & Eval.
		141 JAN 81 1977 Rec. Mgmt Spec. lav
		Training Telephone Rm
	THE WASHINGTON POST	Thursday, January 20, 1977 F27
Jack Anderson and I	es Whitten
	False Oswal	J C+
The Central Intelligence Agency
asked one of its Cuban operatives to help fabricate a story about Lee	franscripts why the CIA would want to fabricate this evidence. Perhaps the CIA could have sought to tie Ken	$253,000 in cash for past services.
Harvey Oswald during the investiga- tion of the John F. Kennedy assassina- tion, the Cuban has told congressional	nedy's killer to the Castro government. In any event, the CIA agent called	up the world's oldest profession, like most other career seekers who want to investigators.	off the scheme, and Mr. X "never did
In an earlier column, we reported	talk to his cousin," according to a sum- mary of the interview. It should be	higher income and an independent.
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy kill-	migher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle. These are the "major motivating fac-
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CLA agent three months before Kennedy was killed.	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy kill- ing. The mystery witness first met his	get anead in life, are looking for "higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CIA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life.	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with	"higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxnavers.
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CLA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidertial statements to congressional in-	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who em-	get anead in the, are looking for higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers, expense. Two distinguished researchers from
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CIA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the Interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes.	get anead in the, are looking for "higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CLA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an	get anead in the, are looking for higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why women be come prostitutes. Their findings will at
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CIA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy kilking. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a	migher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why women become prostitutes. Their findings will also published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CIA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidertial statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the Interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches.	migher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why women become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press.
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CIA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked."	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the Interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He	"higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers', expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why wonen become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives."
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CLA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the Interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground.	"higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers, expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why wonen become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers, according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires lit-
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CIA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized the CIA agent's companion after	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the Interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy kilking. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X'had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chile, Mr. X tried again to knock him off.	"higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why wonen become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling. For the pay, there are "virtually no
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CIA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidertial statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized the CIA agent's companion after seeing Oswald on television following the Kennedy assassination.	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the Interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chile, Mr. X tried again to knock him off. The plotters included a Venezuelan security agent, named Luis Posada Car-	"higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers' expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why women become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling. For the pay, there are "virtually no other occupations available" to women of modest skills, the researchers note.
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CIA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidertial statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized the CIA agent's companion after seeing Oswald on television following the Kennedy assassination. Not long after ward, the CIA contact made a strange request of Mr. X.	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the Interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chile, Mr. X tried again to knock him off. The plotters included a Venezuelan security agent, named Luis Posada Carriles, who was supposed to provide forged documents laying the blame on	"higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why wonen become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling. For the pay, there are "virtually no other occupations available" to women of modest skills, the researchers note.
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CIA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidertial statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized the CIA agent's companion after seeing Oswald on television following the Kennedy assassination. Not long after ward, the CIA contact made a strange request of Mr. X. There had beeh a report that Oswald had met a Cupan couple in Mexico.	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the Interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chile, Mr. X tried again to knock him off. The plotters included a Venezuelan security agent, named Luis Posada Carriles, who was supposed to provide forged documents laying the blame on the Soviets. This plot, too, fell through.	get anead in the, are looking for "higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why women become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling. For the pay, there are "virtually no other occupations available" to women of modest skills, the researchers note. They conclude that prostitution will flourish as long as there is "a consumer demand." As they sut it. "Eco-
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CLA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized the CIA agent's companion after seeing Oswald on television following the Kennedy assassination. Not long afterward, the CIA contact made a strangs request of Mr. X. There had been a report that Oswald had met a Cuban couple in Mexico. "You have a cousin working for Cuban"	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the Interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embeziled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby spartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chile, Mr. X tried again to knock him off. The plotters included a Venezuelan security agent, named Luis Posada Carriles, who was supposed to provide forged documents laying the blame on the Soviets. This plot, too, fell through. Only a few weeks ago, the same Posada was indicted in Venezuela on	"higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why women become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling. For the pay, there are "virtually no other occupations available" to women of modest skills, the researchers note. They conclude that prostitution will flourish as long as there is "a consumer demand." As they put it, "Economics is the pervasive theme of prostitution."
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CIA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidertial statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized the CIA agent's companion after seeing Oswald on television following the Kennedy assassination. Not long afterward, the CIA contact made a strange request of Mr. X. There had been a report that Oswald had met a Cupan couple in Mexico. "You have a cousin working for Cuban intelligence in Mexico," the CIA agent said. "Why don't you just ask him, say-	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the Interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chile, Mr. X tried again to knock him off. The plotters included a Venezuelan security agent, named Luis Posada Carriles, who was supposed to provide forged documents laying the blame on the Soviets. This plot, too, fell through. Only a few weeks ago, the same Posada was indicted in Venezuela on murder charges in connection with the crash of a Cuban jetliner.	"higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why wonen become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling. For the pay, there are "virtually no other occupations available" to women of modest skills, the researchers note. They conclude that prostitution will flourish as long as there is "a consumer demand." As they put it, "Economics is the pervasive theme of prostitution." The study also dispels old wiver tale about "fallen women," who sell sex be
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CLA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized the CIA agent's companion after seeing Oswald on television following the Kennedy assassination. Not long afterward, the CIA contact made a strange request of Mr. X. There had been a report that Oswald had met a Cuban couple in Mexico. "You have a cousin working for Cuban intelligence in Mexico," the CIA agent said. "Why don't you just ask him, saying we'll bribe him, if he said it was really him that Oswald met."	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the Interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embeziled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby spartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chille, Mr. X tried again to knock him off. The plotters included a Venezuelan security agent, named Luis Posada Carriles, who was supposed to provide forged documents laying the blame on the Soviets. This plot, too, fell through. Only a few weeks ago, the same Posada was indicted in Venezuela on murder charges in connection with the crash of a Cuban jetliner. Mr. X said he worked for the CIA until 1973 for expenses. When the relations with the crash of a Cuban jetliner.	"higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why wonen become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling. For the pay, there are "virtually no other occupations available" to women of modest skills, the researchers note. They conclude that prostitution will flourish as long as there is "a consumer demand." As they jut it, "Ecconomics is the pervasive theme of prostitution." The study also dispels old wives tale about "fallen women," who sell sex because they hate men or have abnormal sex drives or are forced into the busi-
In an earlier column, we reported that the same witness claimed he had met the accused assassin in Dallas in the company of a CLA agent three months before Kennedy was killed. We identified the witness only as Mr. X because of attempts on his life. But we have studied his detailed, confidential statements to congressional investigators. They interviewed him three times, cross-examining him closely. He gave them such specific information that they concluded he was a "credible" witness. He told of meeting his CIA contact in the lobby of a Dallas office building in August, 1963. "This time he brought another guy," recounted Mr. X. "The guy never talked." Mr. X explained that he had trained himself, as an underground leader, to memorize the characteristics of people he met. He immediately recognized the CIA agent's companion after seeing Oswald on television following the Kennedy assassination. Not long afterward, the CIA contact	mary of the interview. It should be stressed that the Interview in no way implicates the CIA in the Kennedy killing. The mystery witness first met his CIA contact in Havana before the United States broke off relations with Cuba. Mr. X had helped to organize a group of bank accountants, who embezzled funds from the Castro regime to finance anti-Castro causes. The agent, who used the name Morris Bishop, recruited Mr. X to plan an attempt on Castro's life. The plotters planned to fire a bazooka from a nearby apartment while Castro was delivering one of his marathon speeches. The plot was discovered by Castro's police, and Mr. X escaped to Miami. He continued for a dozen more years to work with Bishop in the anti-Castro underground. During Castro's 1971 visit to Chile, Mr. X tried again to knock him off. The plotters included a Venezuelan security agent, named Luis Posada Carriles, who was supposed to provide forged documents laying the blame on the Soviets. This plot, too, fell through. Only a few weeks ago, the same Posada was indicted in Venezuela on murder charges in connection with the crash of a Cuban jetliner. Mr. X said he worked for the CIA un-	"higher income and an independent, exciting lifestyle." These are the "major motivating factors" that lead women into prostitution. So concludes a scholarly study of callgirls and streetwalkers, which has just been completed at the taxpayers expense. Two distinguished researchers from the University of Washington, Dr. Jennifer James and Jane Meyerding, were assigned to find out why women become prostitutes. Their findings will be published shortly in a 32-page document, which has been bootlegged to us before it goes to press. Not only do women become prostitutes for the sume underlying motives that "some people become lawyers," according to the learned ladies from Seattle, but the profession requires little schooling. For the pay, there are "virtually no other occupations available" to women of modest skills, the researchers note. They conclude that prostitution will flourish as long as there is "a consumer demand." As they just it, "Economics is the pervasive theme of prostitution." The study also dispels old wives' tale about "fallen women," who sell sex because they hate men or have abnormal