Assassination of President John
F. Kennedy

The will pass.

Conventions will come out go.

But nothing will change the fact that in Dallas on November 22, 1963, a known Marxist, a known pro-Castro, a known member of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee, a known defector to the Soviet Union, was not under surveillance as he worked in a half-empty warehouse building with high windows overlooking the route of the presidential motorcade.

There are no explanations for this original error. The fact of it will ultimately receive the court case and expose the sadness underneath.
