He stated [redacted] informed him in January, 1964 that KGB had questioned him about his contacts with [redacted] in Moscow and KGB instructed [redacted] to report any further contacts with [redacted]. [redacted] also admitted associating with [redacted] (or [redacted]), an icon restorer and artist; and with [redacted] a ballet teacher who instructs wives of diplomatic personnel in Moscow. He advised that in about June, 1963 he went to the Diplomatic Dacha in the company of [redacted] and a female secretary from the [redacted]. Because of the accommodations, he shared a room with [redacted] and upon retiring for the night [redacted] came over to [redacted] bed and kissed him on the forehead. [redacted] said he was puzzled by this action but did not consider it to be a homosexual approach. [redacted] admitted having homosexual tendencies but denied homosexual activity; however, his reactions to questions posed during polygraph examination indicated he was untruthful in his denials of homosexual involvement with [redacted] with [redacted] with [redacted] another USDS Foreign Service Officer in Moscow, and with others. [redacted] USDS resignation was accepted, effective July 31, 1964. [redacted] also resigned from USDS after denying homosexual activities or inclinations. JAS (u)

IV. Evaluation of the Case

(S)

Nosenko as Deputy Chief of the 7th (Tourist) Department in 1963 would not normally be expected to know about captioned case;

Interviews of [redacted] leave no doubt that KGB was operating against [redacted] probably well after Nosenko's defection. Both individuals were recalled by USDS in 1964 [redacted] and other USDS Foreign Service Officers whose activities became suspect through interviews of [redacted] also were recalled and at least two resigned from USDS, in addition to [redacted] Also the American Ambassador, Moscow was instructed by USDS to [redacted] (u)

by August, 1964. (X)(u)

In view of the resignation of [redacted] from USDS, this case does not appear to have any apparent potential for development; however it is believed desirable that [redacted] and [redacted] be interviewed concerning their association with American Embassy employees in Moscow. (X)(u)

Summary of the Case

Because of his concern for his safety for the remainder of his 1961 visit to Russia, [redacted] did deposit with the American Embassy a letter to his mother; however, he also gave the American Ambassador a written report of the KGB entrapment immediately after the incident, and he was interviewed about the matter by the Minister Counsellor the following day. [redacted] who was well acquainted with Washington, D.C. and knew USDS and CIA very well, asked [redacted] if he would be willing to visit occasionally with someone from the Soviet Embassy, Washington, D.C. [redacted] said he would refuse to engage in any secret, subversive or underhanded activities; however, he had contacts in many other Embassies in Washington, D.C. which were presumably mutually advantageous and it would certainly be useful to have a contact in the Soviet Embassy which would have to be completely open and above-board. (X)(u)

[redacted] was interviewed by the FBI in November, 1961, April, 1962 and July, 1964. He denied contacts with Soviets since July, 1961, but admitted receiving a formal invitation to attend a reception at the Soviet Embassy on May 4, 1962 in honor of Soviet Press Day. (X) He said he planned to decline the invitation as he was leaving for Europe from New York on May 5, 1962. From a group of photographs he selected one of [redacted]

[redacted] Akron, Ohio, in interviews by the USAR, State Department, and FBI, advised he [redacted] the American House, Moscow March 16, 1961-January 22, 1963. He relieved [redacted], who spent about three years in this job. During the latter part of [redacted] tour, [redacted] became ill of an unknown allergy and was sent home for treatment. (S)(u)

[A message from USAR Military Attache, Moscow dated January 10, 1963 to the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff for Intelligence advised that the Soviets had detained and questioned [redacted] on January 15, 1963. The apprehension was precipitated allegedly by a letter from [redacted] intercepted by the Soviets which purported to disclose actions by [redacted] that made him liable to prosecution under Soviet law. cooperation was implied by the Soviets; however, [redacted] denied all allegations, refused to cooperate with the Soviets in any way, and was released, after which he reported the incident promptly to the USAR Military Attache, Moscow. (X) (u)

[redacted] advised that [redacted] letter alleged that [redacted] had lived with [redacted] as "man and wife" since November, 1961, that [redacted] had told [redacted] she was pregnant, and that [redacted] instructed her to get an abortion. [redacted] stated he also was accused of engaging in black market activities, of warning Soviet employees against American Embassy Security Officer [redacted] and of telling the Soviet employees to distrust [redacted] and (first name unknown) [redacted] because they "carry back all the happenings at the House and the Club to the Embassy." [redacted] stated he denied the allegations and stated he would have to report the incident whether or not the Soviets sent the letter to the American Embassy. [redacted] was then told his activities had been very proper while he had been in Russia, that he had been "fair with your girls", that the letter would not be mailed and "there is no reason why you should mention this to anyone at all." [redacted] was permitted to leave after being confined for about two hours and fifteen minutes. (X) (u)

[redacted] admitted he was intimate with [redacted] from about December, 1961 until June, 1962 at his room in the American House and that in about February or March, 1962 [redacted] informed him she thought she was pregnant. He advised he provided her with money and gifts. He said [redacted] left her employment at the American House in about July, 1962 while he was on leave and was out of work from then until she secured employment with the Japanese Embassy in December, 1962. He also admitted he had been intimate with [redacted] a Soviet dishwasher who replaced [redacted] at the American House. (X) (u)

[redacted] stated [redacted] told him that [redacted] waitress at the American House, complained about her to other Soviet employees, saying she was the "boss's favorite" and received preferential treatment because of this. [redacted] believed that continued complaints against [redacted] by [redacted] may have been the reason why [redacted] was forced to leave her employment at the American House. (X) (u)

IV. Evaluation of the Case

Information furnished by Nosenko/ [redacted]

[redacted]

Since [redacted] promptly reported the approach and left Russia shortly thereafter, it does not appear that [redacted]

In 1968 [redacted] was assigned to Post Services, APO 96331, San Francisco, California (Sukiran, Okinawa, Ryukyu Islands.) The case does not appear to offer any apparent potential for development since KGB undoubtedly concluded [redacted] reported the incident. It is believed desirable, however, to display to Nosenko the descriptions of the five Soviets involved in his apprehension and interrogation in an effort to identify additional KGB personnel involved in his recruitment approach. III. Summary of the Case

[REDACTED] Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, a private nurse, advised the FBI on November 29, 1963 that she and her mother, [REDACTED], traveled to Europe in July, 1961 and met her brother, [REDACTED], in Stockholm where they arranged at a travel agency to enter Russia to visit relatives. They traveled by automobile with [REDACTED] to Leningrad and subsequently visited relatives in Riga. During the visit to Riga [REDACTED] met [REDACTED], a distant relative. After returning to the United States, she corresponded with [REDACTED] and they made plans to marry. She returned to Russia in December, 1961 to consummate the marriage with [REDACTED] however, they were unsuccessful because of opposition by the Soviet Government. (S) (X) (u)

In March, 1962 [REDACTED] obtained a visa from the same travel agency in Stockholm. While in Riga, at the suggestion of the Chief of Intourist there, she contacted a representative of the Soviet "Foreign Office" in Riga, who interrogated her exhaustively about background information on her and her family, world affairs, politics and other matters. She and [REDACTED] then traveled to Moscow where she lost contact with [REDACTED] and was advised by his relatives in Riga that [REDACTED] probably would not be released by Soviet authorities until she left Russia. (S) (X) (u)

About two weeks after [REDACTED] returned to the United States in 1962 she received a letter from [REDACTED] but he did not explain why they had lost contact in Moscow. In the Spring of 1963 she decided to make another attempt to make personal contact with [REDACTED] however she was refused a visa and subsequently was told at the American Embassy that her passport was stamped "No Visa". In April, 1963 she traveled to Rome and telephoned [REDACTED] who said he would meet her in Helsinki June 20 or July 20, 1963. She explained that she speaks Yiddish and [REDACTED] speaks German and they have some difficulty understanding each other; however, she finally decided he had said July 20, 1963. In the meantime she traveled to Copenhagen where she met her brother, [REDACTED] who was then (S) (X) (u) traveling in Europe. On July 20, 1963 she met the train at Helsinki; but [redacted] did not appear. She learned at this time she should have met the train on June 20, 1963 rather than July 20, 1963. (S)(u)

On March 23, 1964, [redacted] advised that on March 20, 1964 she received a telegram from [redacted] stating he was leaving Riga by train on April 10, 1964 to go to Helsinki. On April 1, 1964 she advised she received a telephone call that morning from [redacted] in which he stated he would arrive in Helsinki April 12, 1964. On May 20, 1964 she advised she had recently returned from Helsinki, that she had not been able to meet with [redacted] and that she learned from relatives that [redacted] could not get out of Russia; therefore, she had given up the idea of marrying him. On September 23, 1964, [redacted] Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, a teacher of history at [redacted] Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, corroborated information furnished by [redacted] that he met his mother and [redacted] in Stockholm in July, 1961 and arranged for visas to enter Russia to visit relatives at the Stockholm travel agency of Nyman and Schultz, which he described as one of the largest travel agencies in Stockholm. then joined his sister and mother who were visiting his mother's relatives in Riga. He remained in Riga because he met a Russian girl, [redacted], a student at a university in Leningrad whose family lived in the Ukraine. He described the incident as a romantic interlude and said he was not in love with the girl and never discussed marriage with her. [redacted] recalled that while sitting on a bench in Leningrad with [redacted] three men dressed in civilian clothes approached them, flashed what appeared to be badges, and asked [redacted] to accompany them. The next day [redacted] said the three men lectured to her for about an hour about consorting with foreigners. [redacted] said he was in Leningrad for six or seven days in July, 1961 and saw [redacted] each day. In 1961 he sent two cards to her and in the Spring of 1962 he received another card saying she was getting married. He denied further contact with her. (S)(U)

[redacted] corroborated information furnished by his sister concerning her relations with [redacted]. He said that in March, 1962 when [redacted] returned to the United States very upset after being thwarted in her marriage plans, he and his young brother accompanied [redacted] to the Soviet Embassy, Washington, D.C. to discuss her problems. He and his brother remained in the anteroom while [redacted] talked to a Soviet official. [redacted] learned from [redacted] that the official said there must have been some misunderstanding since it was easy to marry a Soviet national and the Soviet would be allowed to leave Russia without any problems. (S)(U)

[redacted] advised he visited Europe every summer since 1957, except for 1959 when he vacationed in Mexico; however the only time he was in Russia was during the Summer of 1961. He stated that in the Summers of 1963 and 1964 he spent four days in West Berlin with another Philadelphia school teacher, and during each trip they spent a day in East Berlin without being stopped or interrogated.
