sat down in front of the desk there, and Mr. Carter was sitting to my left. We would him, we explained to him, we wanted to talk to him. I took the notes and where then down, and then from my notes I dictated this, what we call an 12-302.

Mr. Stern. This is your memorandum and not Agent Carter's? Mr. Fain. That is right. I was more familiar with the case. I took the notes and did the dictation.

Hr. Stern. And the dictation was when?

Mr. Fain. July 2, 1962; transcribed July 6, 1962.

Mr. Stern. These dates appear where?

Mr. Fain. The date of dictation is shown on the lower right hand corner; date of interview at the left, and date of transcription or typing was on July 6, upper right-hand corner.

Mr. Stern. What was Lee Harvey Cowald's demeanor in the course of this interview?

Mr. Fain. He was tense, kind of drawn up, and rigid. He is kind of a libule, kind of wirey little, fellow, kind of waspy.

Mr. Stern. Did he answer all of your questions?

Mr. Fain. No, he didn't. As indicated there in the fourth paragraph, he was a livible bib, if you will pardon my paying boy a little snovey in his answers. He was the type of individual that apparently doesn't want to give out information about himself, and we asked him as to why he had made this trip to Russia, and he looked like it got under his skin, and I noticed he got white around the lips and kind of tensed up, and I understood of
