L Oswald Was CIA

"I've done some reading and discovered there was serious evidence of Oswald's intelligence operative background the Warren Commission ignored.

Anyone who reads James DiEugenio's cogent analysis of Oswald will understand Oswald was working with CIA as a Russian false defector. He does a good job of destroying Vincent Bugliosi's attempt to prove the Warren Commission was correct.

When in the Dallas Police station after the assassination Oswald tried to call John Hurt in North Carolina. John Hurt was the Naval Intelligence Russian false defector officer. Dallas police had told the switchboard operator to alert them to all of Oswald's attempts to phone out. They intercepted this call and took the number down on a sheet of paper. They then told Oswald the number wasn't responding. The recorded number was later pulled out of the trash in the switchboard room and traced to Hurt. Not being able to escape this the Warren Commission created the story that Hurt got drunk that night and tried to call Oswald to let him have it. However DiEugenio's expert work shows that Oswald tried to call Hurt and not the reverse. He suggests this explains Oswald's sudden departure from life soon after.

There's much much more condemning evidence on things unexplained with Oswald and his precise abilities that were unexplainable by his humble background.

Jim Garrison determined Oswald was seen by dozens of witnesses in the small town of Clinton an hour and a half north of New Orleans. With him was Clay Shaw and David Ferrie, two CIA-connected anti-Castro underground persons. The Warren Commission went out of its way to deny these three knew each other because their relationship could do nothing but establish Oswald as a CIA-connected underground intelligence operator - which he was. So the Warren Commission flagrantly lied and denied evidence to keep its illusion of Oswald as a lone nut going.

Oswald asked a local barber where he could get a job. He was directed to a local sanitarium where he filled out an application. Shaw was seen waiting for him standing outside of his car with his white hair and Ferrie was also seen in the car by dozens of witnesses, some of whom were there because of a CORE black voter registration drive. There's no doubt the three were there and there together. Some researchers speculate Oswald was being duped in to filling out a sanitarium form that could be altered later to be a commitment form which would be used to establish his lone nuttery later after the assassination. The town was connected to the New Orleans anti-Castro rightwingers. Some even lived there.

Researchers looked into some of the witnesses who tried to come forth and testify for Garrison. Some were attacked and had strange accidents like one police officer. A 19 year old girl strangely and suddenly died when she tried to come forth. Friends thought she was poisoned. Even the sheriff ID'ed Shaw and had a good look and talk with him. Warren Commission's response to dozens of firm ID's like this was to say "there was no credible evidence of Oswald, Shaw, and Ferrie being in Clinton."

Jim Garrison wasn't aware, in 1967, that Oswald's pro-Castro leaflet material was lifted from the writings of a peace activist. The material Oswald dispersed on the streets of New Orleans while posing as an open Castro supporter was from the first edition of this peace activist's writings. It was written while Oswald was in Russia posing as a defector in the late 1950's.

By the time Oswald was in New Orleans in 1963 the material in Oswald's leaflets had evolved to the third edition. Yet the leaflets Oswald was handing out contained information from the first edition. So, if Oswald was the lone nut operating on his own the Warren Commission contends, he should have had material from the latest available third edition and not the first. The fact he had material from the first edition is probably because it was gotten from an intelligence agency that stored the original version and distributed it as part of its counter intelligence operations. This was traced to FBI officer Guy Banister's office in New Orleans where witnesses saw the leaflets in Banister's storage room. Some of the leaflets Oswald handed out even had Banister's 544 Camp street address stamped on them.

Researchers discovered a letter Oswald sent to his brother describing his being attacked by anti-Castro cubans on the streets of New Orleans. After analyzing it they discovered the date of the letter was several days before Oswald was actually attacked. This can only mean the attack was part of a counter intelligence operation set-up. Oswald was arrested by the New Orleans police during the attack.

The Warren Commission could never figure out how Oswald, a crazy Texas loner, found out about the Albert Schweitzer College in a small remote town in Switzerland? When the US government asked the Swiss to find this college they couldn't for several weeks. So how did Oswald know about it before his defection to the Soviet Union?

The college's president was a man named Percival Brundage. Brundage was associated with the protestant religious organizations that CIA head Dulles was known to use as cover for CIA operations. In fact, Brundage was a co-signatory owner of Southern Air Transport, a well-known CIA shell company used for CIA operations in the Caribbean and Vietnam.

Ruth and Michael Paine, Marina Oswald's hosts were also associated with this Unitarian Church CIA underground (though the Warren Commission denied it).

So we have the Warren Commission telling us they don't know how Oswald knew about Schweitzer College? Meanwhile researchers had no trouble uncovering these deep CIA connections.

Oswald's fellow marines said Oswald didn't attend the local bars the other marines did. They said he attended the CIA contact type bars where covert activities occurred near the CIA U-2 Atsugi airbase in Japan. They also said he was the only one allowed into the communist zone in the city where the communists were using prostitutes to extract information from their American soldier patrons. Oswald didn't make enough money from his marine salary to frequent the brothels he did in this forbidden zone.

This path obviously suggests a CIA underground false defector program connection to Oswald's knowledge of Schweitzer College. Researchers suggest the college was used in order to get Oswald academic credentials in the Soviet Union that would be used to gain him entry to the Soviet College where subversives were trained. He eventually was admitted to this college in Moscow where his fellow students remarked he had no real interest in Marxist ideology.

So how did Oswald know about the CIA-connected Schweitzer College in Switzerland?"
