

R174
John Causten Currey

Assassination Information Kept Secret to Avoid Public Reaction?

THE blue ribbon commission to investigate the assassination of President Kennedy, headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren, started its work in an atmosphere of skepticism. Since the discovery that the apparent assassin was a Marxist who had denounced this country to live in Russia, only to return here as a partisan of Fidel Castro, doubters have suggested the commission could not reveal everything about the case without jeopardizing diplomatic relations between the U. S. A. and the U. S. S. R.

The chief justice himself fueled these suspicions with a remark to an AP reporter that some of the information gleaned from the interrogation of Mrs. Marina Oswald "may not be released in your lifetime." One of the few things which would be that sensitive, or in Warren's own words "may involve matters of national security," would be the revelation that Lee Oswald was in the pay of, or in direct contact with, the Soviet or Cuban government.

Marina Mikeleyavna Pruskeva Oswald told the commission she is the daughter of a colonel in the Soviet intelligence service. As such, she had social, economic, and educational advantages not available to the average Russian of her generation. Many in this elite younger generation in Russia have become quite blasé about Marx, Lenin, Khrushchev, and Communist dogma. Their luxuries have come from non-Communist countries, via special shops not open to the hoi polloi. Many of them are quick to say they would seek citizenship in America, but are kept at home by our laws, which deny admission to the families of Communist functionaries. Mrs. Oswald's reported decision to speak freely, to ensure that she and her children will have a chance to remain in America, is thus quite believable.

The Warren commission employs as assistant counsel Norman Redlich, a professor at New York University Law School, who is listed on a July, 1963, letterhead of the emergency civil liberties committee (ECLC) as a member of that group's executive committee. The ECLC, not to be confused with the American Civil Liberties Union, was described in the 1959 annual report of the house committee on un-American activities in these words:

"The committee finds that the emergency civil liberties committee, established in 1951, although representing itself as a non-Communist group, actually operates as a front for the Communist Party. It has repeatedly assisted, by means of funds and legal aid, Communists involved in Smith Act violations and similar legal proceedings. One of its chief activities has been and still is the dissemination of voluminous Communist propaganda material."

Counsel Redlich apparently knows what Mrs. Oswald told the commission. It is fair to assume that what an ECLC executive knows is also known to the Communists, and there is no secrecy between the U. S. Red and Moscow. The end result is that the American people are being kept in the dark, not to keep a secret from the Soviet Union, but to avoid public reaction in this country. Another term for this is "managed news."

PC 8
REDLICH, N

Your Lawmakers

Your United States senators and representatives want to hear from you in all pending matters before congress.

Communications to any senator may be addressed to the Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C. Communications to any representative may be addressed to the House Office Building, Washington, D. C.

Oklahoma's two senators are A. S. Mike Monroney and J. Howard Edmondson.

Representatives are:
Page Beicher, representing the first district; Ed Edmondson, second district; Carl Albert, third district; Tom Steed, fourth district; John Jarman, fifth district; and Victor Wickersham, sixth district.

*I welcome the fact that some authorities from our Senators?
No you can't call a Communist
You the Warren Commission
Let's hear from you on this through the Oklahoma
A Taxpayer*

DATE RECEIVED
INDEXED

E. K. Gaylord, President and Publisher
Edward L. Gaylord, Executive Vice-President and Treasurer
George R. Katz, Vice-President
Charles L. Bennett, Managing Editor
James H. Hunter, Advertising Manager
Robert H. Spahn, Production Manager
Heige Holm, Circulation Manager

NATIONAL ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES
The KATZ AGENCY, INC., New York
Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Dallas
Atlanta, San Francisco, Los Angeles
Philadelphia, Seattle.

All unsolicited articles, manuscripts, letters and pictures sent to The Daily Oklahoma are sent at the owner's risk and The Oklahoma Publishing Co. expressly repudiates any liability or responsibility for their safe custody or return. The Associated Press is exclusively entitled to the use for republication of all news dispatches credited to it or not otherwise credited in this paper and also the local news published herein.

18 Monday, Feb. 17, 1964

John Causten Currey

Assassination Information Kept Secret to Avoid Public Reaction?

THE blue ribbon commission to investigate the assassination of President Kennedy, headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren, started its work in an atmosphere of skepticism. Since the discovery that the apparent assassin was a Marxist who had denounced this country to live in Russia, only to return here as a partisan of Fidel Castro, doubters have suggested the commission could not reveal everything about the case without jeopardizing diplomatic relations between the U. S. A. and the U. S. S. R.

The chief justice himself fueled these suspicions with a remark to an AP reporter that some of the information gleaned from the interrogation of Mrs. Marina Oswald "may not be released in your lifetime." One of the few things which would be that sensitive, or in Warren's own words "may involve matters of national security," would be the revelation that Lee Oswald was in the pay of, or in direct contact with, the Soviet or Cuban government.

Marina Mikeleyavna Pruskeva Oswald told the commission she is the daughter of a colonel in the Soviet intelligence service. As such, she had social, economic, and educational advantages not available to the average Russian of her generation. Many in this elite younger generation in Russia have become quite blasé about Marx, Lenin, Khrushchev, and Communist dogma. Their luxuries have come from non-Communist countries, via special shops not open to the hoi polloi. Many of them are quick to say they would seek citizenship in America, but are kept at home by our laws, which deny admission to the families of Communist functionaries. Mrs. Oswald's reported decision to speak freely; to ensure that she and her children will have a chance to remain in America, is thus quite believable.

The Warren commission employs as assistant counsel Norman Redlich, a professor at New York University Law School, who is listed on a July, 1963, letterhead of the emergency civil liberties committee (ECLC) as a member of that group's executive committee. The ECLC, not to be confused with the American Civil Liberties Union, was described in the 1959 annual report of the house committee on un-American activities in these words:

"The committee finds that the emergency civil liberties committee, established in 1951, although representing itself as a non-Communist group, actually operates as a front for the Communist Party. It has repeatedly assisted, by means of funds and legal aid, Communists involved in Smith Act violations and similar legal proceedings. One of its chief activities has been and still is the dissemination of voluminous Communist propaganda material."

It is fair to assume that what ECLC executive knows is also known to the Communists, and there is no secrecy known in Moscow. The end result is that the American people are being kept in the dark, not to keep a secret from the Soviet Union, but to avoid public reaction in this country.

Another term for this is "managed news."

Counsel Redlich - what it is ECLC known is no secrecy. It is that American from - to avoid public - country managed news.