INTRODUCTION

The President's Commission on the Assassination of President Kennedy, commonly called the Warren Commission from the name of its Chairman, was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson by Executive Order No. 11130 on November 29, 1963. Its purpose was to investigate the assassination of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy on November 22, 1963, at Dallas, Texas. The President directed the Commission to evaluate all the facts and circumstances surrounding the assassination and the subsequent killing of the alleged assassin and to report its findings and conclusions to him.

The following men were appointed as members of the Commission:

1. Earl Warren, Chief Justice of the United States, former Governor and Attorney General of California, Chairman
2. Richard B. Russell, Democratic Senator from Georgia and chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, former Governor of Georgia and county attorney in that State.
3. John Sherman Cooper, Republican Senator from Kentucky, former county and circuit judge in Kentucky and United States Ambassador to India.
4. Hale Boggs, Democratic Representative from Louisiana and majority whip in the House of Representatives.
5. Gerald R. Ford, Republican Representative from Michigan and chairman of the House Republican Conference.
6. Allen W. Dulles, lawyer and former Director of the Central Intelligence Agency.
7. John J. McCloy, lawyer, former President of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, and former United States High Commissioner for Germany.

The tragic events that caused the appointment of the Commission may be briefly summarized. The assassination of President Kennedy and the simultaneous wounding of Governor John B. Connally of Texas was quickly followed by the murder of Patrolman J. D. Tippit of the Dallas Police Department. Shortly afterward Lee Harvey Oswald was arrested by the Dallas police as a suspect in Tippit's murder. On the basis of evidence provided by Federal, State, and local agencies, the State of Texas arraigned Oswald within 12 hours of his arrest, charging him with the assassination of President Kennedy and the murder of Patrolman Tippit. On November 24, 1963, Oswald was fatally shot in the basement of the Dallas Police Department building by Jack Ruby, a Dallas nightclub owner.

These events caused many people, both in the United States and abroad, to suspect the existence of a foreign or domestic conspiracy to assassinate the President. Since it was not possible to determine the truth by normal judicial procedures after the death of Oswald, various methods of conducting an investigation were discussed. A State court of inquiry in Texas, an investigation by the grand jury of Dallas County, and investigations by both Houses of Congress were all considered. It was to avoid any possible parallel investigations that President Johnson appointed his Commission.

On December 13, 1963, Congress passed Senate Joint Resolution 137 (Public Law 88-202) authorizing the Commission to subpoena witnesses and obtain evidence concerning any matter relating to the investigation. The resolution also gave the Commission the power to compel the testimony of witnesses by granting immunity from prosecution to witnesses testifying under compulsion. The Commission, however, did not grant immunity to any witness during the investigation.

The Commission acted promptly to obtain a staff to meet its needs. J. Lee Rankin, former Solicitor General of the United States, was sworn in as general counsel for the Commission on December 16, 1963. He was aided in his work by 14 assistant counsel who were divided into teams to deal with the various subject areas of the investigation. The Commission was also assisted by lawyers, Internal Revenue agents, a senior historian, an editor, and secretarial and administrative personnel who were assigned to the Commission by Federal agencies at its request. Officials and agencies of the State of Texas, as well as of the Federal Government, fully cooperated with the Commission in its work.

From the first the Commission regarded the Executive order by which it was appointed as a mandate to conduct a thorough and independent investigation. After reviewing the five-volume report of the Federal Bureau of Investigation received on December 9, 1963, it requested the Bureau to furnish the investigative reports on which this general report was based. The first investigative reports submitted in response to this request were delivered to the Commission on December 20, 1963. Other reports were received from the Secret Service, the Department of State, and the attorney general of Texas. After these reports were studied, further requests for information were made, particularly to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Secret Service, and the Central Intelligence Agency. To insure that all possible sources of information would be available, the Commission also sent requests to 24 departments and agencies of the Government and to four congressional committees for all information in their possession relating to the assassination or the background and activities of Lee Harvey Oswald and Jack Ruby (see entry 11). The Commission also occasionally used independent experts from State and city governments to obtain information. On several occasions the Commission went to Dallas to visit the scene of the assassination and other places.

Besides the information resulting from investigations, the Commission relied on the testimony of the principal witnesses to the assassination and related events. The Commission and its staff took the testimony of 552 witnesses beginning with its first hearing on February 3, 1964. Of this number, 94 appeared before members of the Commission, 395 were questioned by members of the Commission's legal staff, 61 supplied affidavits, and two gave statements. The Commission's hearings were closed unless a witness requested an open hearing. The testimony of one witness on two occasions was by this rule taken in a public hearing. The Commission by holding closed hearings sought to avoid premature publication of testimony that might interfere with Jack Ruby's right to a fair trial or that might prejudice innocent parties. The Commission also requested Walter E. Craig, President of the American Bar Association, to participate in the investigation and advise the Commission whether in his opinion the proceedings conformed to the basic principles of American justice. Mr. Craig agreed and participated fully in the investigation. This was done in fairness to the alleged assassin and his family and was agreeable to counsel for Oswald's widow.

The Commission presented its Report, in which each member concurred, to the President on September 24, 1964. The publication of the Report at that time was soon followed by the publication of the 26 volumes of the Commission's Hearings. They consist of 15 volumes of testimony and 11 volumes of exhibits (for records relating to the Report, the Hearings, and their publication, see entries 27-33). The Commission then transferred its records to the National Archives to be permanently preserved under the rules and regulations of the National Archives and applicable Federal law.

Josephine Farrar had been detailed by the Office of Records Management of the National Archives and Records Service soon after the appointment of the Commission to supervise the creation and maintenance of its files. Numerous conferences were held between National Archives and Records Service personnel and representatives of the Commission concerning the adoption of a file system and procedures that would help the staff of the Commission in its work. Dr. Alfred Goldberg, senior historian of the Historical Division of the Air Force on detail to the Commission, had a leading part in these meetings. A subject-numeric system was adopted for the Commission's records. A numbered document file was set up for the reports of investigative agencies and other basic documents (see entry 8). Indexing and cross referencing of the Commission's records were accomplished by using extra copies of documents either in whole or in part.

The records of the President's Commission on the Assassination of President Kennedy described in this inventory are part of Record Group 220, Records of Presidential Committees, Commissions, and Boards, in the National Archives and include about 360 cubic feet of records and related material. They consist of investigative reports submitted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Secret Service, and the Central Intelligence Agency; various kinds of documents such as income tax returns, passport files, military and selective service records, and school records relating to the lives of Lee Harvey Oswald and Jack Ruby; transcripts of testimony, depositions, and affidavits of witnesses; correspondence; manuals of procedures of Federal agencies; administrative memoranda; records relating to personnel; fiscal records; agenda, proceedings, and minutes of Commission meetings and minutes of staff meetings; exhibits; tape recordings, newspapers and press clippings, and films; indexes; drafts and printer's proofs of the Report and Hearings of the Commission; a chronology of events in the lives of Oswald, Ruby, and others, 1959-63; records relating to the interrogation and trial of Jack Ruby; and other records. Most of these records relate to the period of the investigation of President Kennedy's assassination, November 1963-September 1964, but some records of earlier and a few of later dates are included. They include all records of the Commission except an undetermined quantity of fiscal records and personnel folders in the custody of the General Services Administration. Related material received from sources other than the Commission are listed in entries 33 and 52 of this inventory. Related material is also in Record Group 200, Gift Motion Pictures in the National Archives (Columbia Broadcasting System News films of programs relating to the Report of the Commission broadcast in 1964 and 1967, including scripts for the 1967 programs) and Record Group 273, Gift Still Pictures in the National Archives (X-rays and photographs relating to the autopsy of President Kennedy).
