SOPHISTICATED DOUBTERS

in New York may be surprised to learn that their suspicion of the Warren Commission Report on the Kennedy assassination is shared by the folks in Dallas, Texas. The people down there also feel that some sort of whitewash is going on and that if all the facts were made known it would be proved that the assassination was a well-thought-out plot.

Here in New York many people believe that the killing was the result of a right-wing plot, and that influential rightists in Washington are covering up.

In Dallas, according to a former Texan who just returned to the Village after a visit home, almost all the people he talked to were certain that Oswald was not the only man in the plot and that the facts could be uncovered if the people in Washington wanted to find them out. Texans are sure the influential leftists who control things in Washington have pulled the curtain down on the case.
