DOMESTIC NEWS

PLAINS, GEORGIA: President Carter said Sunday, he did not believe United States Nation's ambassador Andrew Young's statements, about former secretary of state Henry Kissinger were meant in a critical way. The president, buoyed by his first weekend home, prepared to fly back to Washington Sunday in the so-called Toomshay air force command super jet, for a briefing by Young in the day and a visit by Mexican president Jose Lopez Portillo on Monday. Young said after a 10 days visit to Africa, that Kissinger's seeking to bring black majority rule to Rhodesia, put a burden on Britain's back and then abandoned then. Sunday Carter was asked about Young's comments. Because of the election year, it was obvious that president Ford and secretary Kissinger could not proceed as vigorously or with as much influence as they could have had president Ford been relaxed. Carter said, "I do not think Andy said it in a critical way". As long as Kissinger was destined to be secretary for more years or whatever, he had more influence to help the British. Carter said, that the desire of world leaders to postpone action on trouble spots was no reflection of Ford and Kissinger. A lot of leaders wanted to wait until a new administration came in, Carter said.

SEATTLE WASHINGTON: Attorney General Griffin Bell said Sunday, a still secret Justice Department investigation does not rule out the possibility there was a conspiracy to assassinate Martin Luther King. Bell in a television interview also said, neither the Attorney General nor the Justice Department has authority to conduct warrantless breakins. But he left open the possibility that in his view, the president could order warrantless breakins under some circumstances to protect national security.

DETROIT: Despite production cutbacks, forced by severe winter weather, the auto industry's stockpile of unsold cars mounted again last month, and auto-makers entered February with a 66 day inventory, according to analysts.

They said, the cocaine and about 11 pounds of high-quality heroin had a street value estimated at approximately 73 million dollars.

INDEPENDENCE-MISSOURI: Bess Truman, overjoyed to have her daughter with her, celebrated her 92th birthday Sunday in the white victorian house, in which she grew up.

ERIE PENN.: Two men thought it would be a great idea to walk across frozen lake Erie from the United States to Canada, gave up the dangerous hike Sunday after covering about eight of the 24 miles. They were taken back to dry land by helicopter. One of them Brian Kinal said, he would not advise anyone to try the walk.
