"Sylvia Meagher has approached the problem of President Kennedy's assassination with meticulous care. Building on primary research, she has helped the work of other students of the case and contributed a powerful understanding of the interaction of great political events and details. Her analysis and understanding puts to shame the Warren Commission and <sup>its</sup> the investigators, who had the full power of the state with which to find the truth. Because of the intellectual power of Mrs. Meagher's book, all reasonable doubt about the need for an official reinvestigation of the circumstances surrounding the deaths of President Kennedy and Lee Oswald is removed, and we will now enter round two of the effort of the American people to learn the whole story behind the assassination."

--Marcus G. Raskin
Co-Director of the Institute for Policy Studies

① "If, as is most unlikely, those responsible for suppressing the facts about the death of President Kennedy, are ever brought to trial as accessories after the fact, Sylvia Meagher's scholarly book might well serve as a prosecution brief. It is a massive, thorough and accurate work and it contains material not previously explored. Those who cannot accept the Warren Commission's conclusions will want to read ACCESSORIES AFTER THE FACT. Those who believe the Warren Report should read it; it seems doubtful that they will then be able to retain their original view."

--Mark Lane, author of RUSH TO JUDGMENT

~~"I have seen ACCESSORIES AFTER THE FACT in formation, and it was my privilege to publish parts of it in the pages of our monthly."~~

⑤ "What accounts for this being the by far most important book on the Kennedy assassination is the rare combination of traits of Sylvia Meagher's: a sharp-edged logic that unwinds the thread of evidence from the bulky knot of political conspiracy, expediency and camouflage; and an ethical integrity which precludes any self-serving or partisan favoritism at the expense of truth. Sylvia Meagher's objectivity is anything but moral indifference, and her moral outrage is anything but uninformed."

--M.S. Aronson, Editor, The Minority of One

"When I first became interested in the Warren Commission Report and its obvious failures, I was perturbed that I might do a poor job with reference to the known facts. Then I met Sylvia Meagher. On the subject of the Warren Report, Sylvia Meagher could replace a computer--instead of pushing a button you called Sylvia and you got your answer, with cross references to what was available in the 26 volumes of Hearings and Exhibits and to what had been written in the field. Her book, ACCESSORIES AFTER THE FACT, is overwhelming."

Representative Theodore R. Kupferman (R., N.Y.)

"Sylvia Meagher raises a number of disturbing questions; it was with such questions in mind that I called for Congressional review of the findings of the Warren Commission. ACCESSORIES AFTER THE FACT points out the need for such a review."

Representative William P. Ryan (D., N.Y.)
