Dear Sylvia,

I enclose a copy of my story as it appeared in the Inquirer this morning.

After six weeks of work, I'm afraid I managed to add only one small new fact to the body of "the literature." You'll spy it as you read along, I'm sure.

My admiration for your book held up consistently while I worked on the story, and I consulted it repeatedly. The numerous people who told me that it is indispensable to thorough understanding of the case were absolutely correct.

Please let me know if you come across anything new in the future. I'm hooked on the case now, and I know I'll never stop wondering about the odd places in it.

Best of luck,
