Dear Menachem,

Of course; I am only too happy to have you read my manuscript. I only hope that you won't mind reading the carbon copy rather than the master; and that you will forgive various handwritten insertions or corrections, and the incomplete pagination, and similar defects.

I should explain that there are certain anachronisms and inconsistencies of style resulting from the fact that I did not write the manuscript in chronological sequence. Some of the early chapters were written long after the later ones. Also, I began the writing in the context of a severe and arbitrary scheme (see, for example, the very first pages), and later changed to a more narrative format which combines, rather than compartmentalizes, evidence and evaluation of evidence. For those reasons, the manuscript is not really in final form as yet.

You will be the first person to read it (apart from a close friend who read it when it was only half the present length) and I will value your criticism very much indeed. I am already conscious of many shortcomings in the style and structure, but the substance seems to me to demonstrate beyond doubt that the Warren Report is a cynical compendium of lies of every degree and shading, purely in comparison to the official testimony and documents.

I am going now to the post office to mail you the ms. under separate cover. Warm regards,

Sincerely,

Sylvia Meagher
