Dear Sylvia,

Many thanks for your comments on the A.G. files, which arrived today. Here is the correspondence file, which you may study under same conditions as before, i.e. please return, but you can xerox and ~~the~~ publicize or publish whatever you like.

Garrison finally returned from West Coast, and I am afraid, thanks to encouragement from Mark Lane's henchmen, Steve Jaffe & Gary Sanders, is going overboard about sewer systems. The trouble is, these two are looking for a job as investigators, and, because they cannot think of a better tack, come up with flamboyant nonsense in the hope that will be accepted as bright young idea men. However, both have a third rate knowledge of the case. Louis Ivon recently discovered the real reason why they are so anxious to be hired: If you work for a law enforcement agency you are draft-exempt, and both are imminently draftable.

Lane says very little; just sits back and watches. Heaven knows what he thinks he is doing here.

Otherwise, not much news.

Best wishes,
Tom.
