Dear Tom,

I have now gone through the files from the Texas Attorney-General's archives and am returning the material to you under separate cover. (To avoid a trip to the post office, I have sent them via special manuscript rate, so please allow some extra time.)

I did not find any electrifying new information in these files, but there were a number of oddities of one kind or another that seemed to merit comment. You will find my remarks typed on separate half-sheets of paper, which are placed on the page in question with right-side edges protruding. I trust that these comments will prove useful.

I did not xerox any of the documents nor take the files apart, mainly for lack of time, but I do appreciate your willingness to have me do so. (I did type a copy of the results of Tippit's Rorschach tests because I found it interesting, although it has no inherent evidentiary value.)

Should you wish to send me the correspondence file, I will be glad to read it and send any comments in the same way.

With best personal regards,

Yours sincerely,
