Dear Sylvia:

That shoe-box shooting took place about 1950 in a New York Subway. At the time, Frank Leucci was Property Clerk for the NYC Police Dept. (If you will phone the Property Clerk's office you might pinpoint Leucci's reign- thus enabling you to check via local papers.)

The "master-mind" was traced to a cottage in the Catskills and was shot during the attempted capture. I don't know what happened to the dupe.

We are told that pirates felt that "dead men tell no tales" and applied this principle freely; I wonder if there's any significance in the fact that in the assassinations of Admiral Darlan, Huey Long, ~~XXXXXXXXXX~~ President Remon and that Guatemalan President (name ?) an alleged assassin was killed on the spot.

You may quote me as the source of the "shoe-box" killing reference if you wish.

C o r d i a l l y ,
