Dear Sylvia,

Thanks for the letter and the check. The "Wisconsin Magazine of History" wrote me that reprints would cost $1.75 an issue. Fortunately, Wrono can have photo-offset reprints made in Wisconsin very cheaply. I believe he told me that it would cost him less than $10 to have 50 copies run off. Do you think there should be a covering letter? From whom?

When I find what the total cost will be, I'll return the balance of your check. It may be some time before I can find time to mail them out. It is fairly likely that I will have to do some additional legal work on the Ray and Spectro cases within the next couple of weeks. And if the thugs who run the Columbia Title Insurance Company don't sabotage us again, my wife and I will move to a new address (1231 4th Street, S. W.) around the ides of April, so I will be quite busy with moving for awhile.

The Spectro decision seems to have baffled nearly all the non-lawyers to whom I sent copies. I guess that it would also leave me confused, except that, as a lawyer friend and former classmate recently told me, I am "degenerating into a lawyer". As you know, lawyers exercise great facility in distinguishing one judicial decision from another, without ever once letting on that the decisions themselves are incomprehensible.

As you are probably already aware, the April issue of Esquire contains an unenlightening account of the Farewell America saga by Warren Hinckle.

My very best regards,

Sincerely yours,

Jim
