Dear John,

This is a bit belated, but I do want to congratulate you on the success of the November issue. I was entirely satisfied with the presentation of my own piece. I did try to phone you but when I didn't reach you, asked Martin Petroff to convey my compliments.

Incidentally, I should like to mention how very thoughtful and pleasant Martin Petroff has been in my contacts with him. He is always as good as his word and seems to have none of the obnoxious qualities usually attributed to public relations men. If he is as considerate and reliable with others as he was with me, he surely makes many friends for the magazine.

I'd just as soon keep these comments strictly between the two of us (or at least don't tell Petroff what I have said about him behind his back).

With best regards,

Yours sincerely,
