Dear Sylvia -

We called home last night and Larry said you had called. We told him when we left home not to let anyone know we were in New Orleans. I'm sorry I missed your call.

Tom Bethell is in Washington, D.C. all this week, so we've missed him, too.

George Renner, a young lawyer from Seattle, Wash., and a Kennedy assassination buff has been visiting in our home since the middle of August. He had never been farther east than Butte, Montana, when he made the trip to Dallas. He wanted to see New Orleans and we brought him down here. I thought he wanted to see the city - but all he wanted was to see Jim Garrison - He has almost driven me crazy and I won't give him Jim's unlisted number or let him use my name in the DA's office to get Jim to answer the call.

Incidentally, I haven't heard from Bud since I wrote to him complaining about his article in Computers + Automation. He never even acknowledged my letter -

I'll write more when we get back to Dallas -

Love

Mary
