Dear Mary,

Please excuse this scrawl, written during a UN meeting. I was glad to get your letter (from New Orleans) and look forward to a longer report on George Benmar's visit as well as all your other news, personal as well as on the case;

I am writing hastily now to ask you if the name CECILE UPSHAW rings any bell for you, or appears in your extensive index card file of names. I am embarrassed to tell you why I ask! Frankly, and please keep this confidential so I don't look too great a fool, I woke up in the night with this name in my mind as if demanding attention. I just cannot understand why, but there the name is, out of my subconscious. I presume!
Love - in haste - Sylvia
