

17 April 1967

Dearest Maggie,

Just a very quick note apropos of Oswald's address-book, CE 18. I was surprised when you said last night that about sixty or more pages were missing; so I looked through it quickly this morning before leaving for the office. (Bear in mind that I am two-thirds unconscious at that hour, so I may be completely wrong.) So far as I can see, every page of the notebook is shown by photocopy; but only those pages in Russian, in whole or in part, are reproduced in printed translation. The English pages are photocopied but not repeated in printing. I think that explains the apparent gaps—or did you have a different set of factors in mind?

Looking forward to news of your exact arrival time on Thursday, and of course to your visit,

Love,
