Dear Sylvia,

I know I should not bother you so much about the Master's Return, but half the fun is the letters you write about it...you are getting a little ironical touch that is so good, you must have borrowed it from me!

I am borrowing more of it from Mark Twain, the great master of polemics, invective, rage & hilarious parody: it is a great book that He and I ~~xxxx~~are writing together.

Your information about the bullet wounds is indispensable to me, and I thank you...it had me worried. --I am afraid you must be ~~wright~~ about Garrison; I keep hoping he will bring something out, at least; but I can see the possible harm..I await further word from you breathlessly...Would you & your husband, or any friend or ~~my~~ relative consider coming here to dinner? No parties, but talk? Love, max

Or would you consider a return celebration, if it occurs, and if Menahem would ~~xxxxxxx~~ drive you up here?

Whichever suits you best-- and my affection meanwhile and w/ my wife Anne's.

PS

Have opened your letter to say that I forgot to mention your great poetry re Garrison which is hilarious but also quite informative: what an index of names/people you keep handy; do you really think he is put up to this by federal authorities, as you suggest?
