

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, MAY 5, 1970

4 Kent State Students Killed by Troops

8 Hurt as Shooting Follows Reported Sniping at Rally

By JOHN KIFNER Special to The New York Times KENT, Ohio, May 4-Four students at Kent State University, two of them women, were shot to death this afternoon by a volley of National Guard gunfire. At least 8 other students were wounded. The burst of gunfire came about 20 minutes after the guardsmen broke up a noon rally on the Commons, a grassy campus gathering spot, by lobbing tear gas at a crowd of about 1,000 young people.

In Washington, President Nixon deplored the deaths of the four students in the following statement:

"This should remind us all once again that when dissent turns to violence it invites tragedy. It is my hope that this tragic and unfortunate incident will strengthen the determination of all the nation's campuses, administrators, faculty and students alike to stand firmly for the right which to encircle the guardsmen. exists in this country of peaceful dissent and just as strongly against the resort to violence as a means of such expression."

Tarentum Valley Daily News via Associated Press A girl screams as fellow student lies dead after National Guardsmen opened fire at Kent State sniper opened fire against the fire, nor was the sound of any troops from a nearby rooftop gunfire audible before

Frederick P. Wenger, the Assistant Adjutant General, said there was any sniper. the troops had opened fire after they were shot at by a sniper.

In Columbus, Sylvester Del orders to take cover and re-lgation, to aid in looking into Corso, Adjutant General of the turn any fire," he said. Ohio National Guard, said in a This reporter, who was with Department spokesman said no Gov. James A. Rhodes called "They were under standing the Federal Bureau of Investi-

the campus violence. A Justice statement that the guardsmen the group of students, did not decision had been made to inhad been forced to shoot after a see any indication of sniper vestigate.

At 2:10 this afternoon, after the the shootings, the university and the crowd began to move Guard volley. Students, con-president, Robert I. White, orceding that rocks had been dered the university closed for thrown, heatedly denied that an indefinite time, and officials were making plans to evacuate the dormitories and bus outon J. Edgar Hoover, director of of-state students to nearby cities

Robinson Memorial Hospital identified the dead students as Allison Krause, 19 years old, of

Continued on Page 17, Column 1

Ohio National Guardsmen advancing over the campus of Kent State University yesterday behind a screen of tear gas

Pittsburgh; Sandra Lee Scheuer, the iron Victory Bell on the 20, of Youngstown, Ohio, both commons, normally used to coeds; Jeffrey Glenn Miller, 20, herald football victories. of 22 Diamond Drive, Plain- A National Guard jeep drove view, L. I., and William K. onto the Commons and an of-said that six students had been of tear gas were fired, and the students straggled up a hill that borders the area and retreated Three were reported in critical into buildings. condition and three in fair conreleased.

Cambodia, have held demon-testers. strations for the last three nights. On Saturday night, the groups, one heading farther Army Reserve OOfficers Train-downhill toward a dormitory ing Corps building was burned complex, the other eddying to the ground and the Guard around a parking lot and girls was called in and martial law dormitory just below Taylor was declared.

Today's raily, called after a The guardsmen moved into night in which the police and a grassy area just below the guardsmen drove students into parking lot and fired several

Continued From Page I, Col. 5 their dormitories and made 69 arrests, began as students rang

Schroeder, 19, of Lorain, Ohio. ficer ordered the crowd to dis-At 10:30 P.M. the hospital perse. Then several canisters

A platoon of guardsmen, dition. Two others with super- armed-as they have been since ficial wounds were treated and they arrived here with loaded M-1 rifles and gas equipment moved across the green and Students here, angered by over the crest of the hill, chasthe expansion of the war into ing the main body of pro-

> The youths split into two Hall, the architecture building.

United Press International GUNS ON CAMPUS: Policeman, backed by National Guardsman, taking gun from youth at Kent State campus yesterday.

United Press International MOMENTS BEFORE TRAGEDY: Students at Kent State University campus retreating yesterday before tear-gas barrage from National Guardsmen canisters of tear gas from their short, stubby launchers.

THE NEW YORK TIMES, TUESDAY, MAY 5, 1970

Three or four youths ran to the smoking canisters and hurled them back. Most fell far short, but one landed near the troops and a cheer went up from the crowd, which was chanting "Pigs off campus" and cursing the war.

A few youths in the front of the crowd ran into the parking lot and hurled stones or small chunks of pavement in the direction of the guardsmen. Then the troops began moving back up the hill in the direction of the college.

Students Cheer

The students in the parking lot area, numbering about 500, began to move toward the rear of the troops, cheering. Again, a few in front picked up stones from the edge of the parking lot and threw them at the guardsmen. Another group of several hundred students had gathered around the sides of Taylor Hall watching.

As the guardsmen, moving up the hill in single file, reached the crest, they suddenly turned, forming a skirmish line and opening fire.

The crackle of the rifle volley cut the suddenly still air. It appeared to go on, as a solid volley, for perhaps a full minute or a little longer.

Some of the students dived to the ground, crawling on the grass in terror. Others stood shocked or half crouched, apparently believing the troops were firing into the air. Some of the rifle barrels were pointed upward.

Near the top of the hill at the corner of Taylor Hall, a student crumpled over, spun sideways and fell to the ground, shot in the head.

When the firing stopped, a slim girl, wearing a cowboy shirt and faded jeans, was lying face down on the road at the edge of the parking lot, blood pouring out onto the macadam, about 10 feet from this reporter.

Too Shocked to React

The youths stood stunned, many of them clustered in small groups staring at the bodies. A young man cradled one of the bleeding forms in his arms. Several girls began to cry. But many of the students who rushed to the scene seemed almost too shocked to react. Several gathered around an abstract steel sculpture in front of the building and looked at a .30-caliber bullet hole drilled through one of the plates.

The hospital said that six young people were being treated for gunshot wounds, some in the intensive care unit. Three of the students who were killed were dead on arrival at the hospital.

One guardsman was treated and released at the hospital and another was admitted with heat prostration.

In early afternoon, students attempted to gather at various area of the Commons but were ordered away by guardsman and the Ohio Highway Patrol, which moved in as reinforcements.

There were no further clashes, as faculty members, graduate assistants and students leaders urged the crowd to go back to the dormitories.

But a bizarre atmosphere hung over the campus as a Guard helicopter hovered overhead, grim-faced officers maneuvered their men to safeguard the normally pastoral campus and students. dazed, fearful and angry, struggled to comprehend what had happened and to find something to do about it.

Students carrying suitcases and duffel bags began leaving the campus this afternoon. Early tonight the entire campus was sealed off and a court injunction was issued ordering all students to leave.

A 5 P.M. curfew was declared in Kent, and road blocks were set up around the town to prevent anyone from entering. A state of emergency was also declared in the nearby towns of Stow and Ravenna.

Statement by General

KENT, Ohio, May 4 (UPI)-Brig. Gen. Robert Canterbury, the commander of Guard troops on the Kent State campus, said today that no warning had been given to the students that the troops would shoot.

General Canterbury, at a campus news conference, said in reply to questioning that no official order had been given to open fire.

"The situation did not allow it," he said. "The emotional atmosphere was such that anything could have happened. It was over in two to three seconds."

He said a guardsman "always has the option to fire if his life is in danger."

"A crowd of about 600 students had surrounded a unit of about 100 guardsmen on three sides and were throwing rocks at the troops," he said. "Some of the rocks were the size of baseballs. The troops had run out of tear gas."

Governor Rhodes, who had ordered the National Guardsmen onto the campus Saturday after students began looting stores and breaking windows in the downtown area, said "a complete investigation" would be made into the shootings.

Dr. White, the university president, said:

"Everyone without exception is horror-struck by the tragedy of the last few hours. Unfortunately, no one is able yet to say with certainty what the facts of the situation are.

"There are many unconfirmed reports of gunfire from various sources," he went on. "We are asking for every possible appropriate investigation, which we shall undertake to pursue to the limit."

Father Is Printer

One of the dead victims at Kent State, Jeffrey Glenn Miller, was the son of Bernard Miller, a linotype operator who works in the composing room of The New York Times.