Dear Miss Meagher,

Thank you for your second letter concerning your index to the Warren Report. We did not realize that your work was so far along, and under the circumstances we feel that consideration of utilization of a computer would probably be fruitless. There are some very interesting projects being carried on with the help of computers, and in the light of your own work you may wish to look into what is being done in the event that some future project of yours might be susceptible to this kind of handling. I believe IBM has literature on the subject.

With best wishes,
Sincerely yours,

Mark Carroll
