Dear Sylvia,

I must thank you so much for the copy of your book which was sent to me by Bobbs-Merrill. Although I have not yet been able to read it in its entirety (your's, Thompson's, and final exams all hit me at once), it looks like it will match the high expectations I have had for it.

It has been too long since we have communicated. I'm certain that our differences over Garrison have caused some reticence for either of us to write. It is too bad, and I hope that we can overcome them in the near future. Of course, I hold no bad feelings toward you because our opinions diverge, and I hope the feeling is mutual.

Again, I thank you.

Best wishes,

Steven J. Burton
