23 July (1973)

Dear Sylvia,

We had a perfectly lovely day with you — one we shall remember, not because of the first Tony gave us, but because of the pleasure we had being with you and sharing your summer environment. Thank you again dear, for receiving us so graciously and for withstanding so well the pressure and anxiety of the last hour. Your apparent confidence really did reassure me and I was just returning to you for a moral boost, when I saw Tony marching down the street with Chet. He slept happily all the way home in the car, obviously the experience did not shock him a bit.

We were a little concerned about your breathing....
Hopefully the weather will be pleasant and dry and not contribute to your difficulties. Although Nixon's performance today is-a-is Rain + Cot
would leave anyone
gapping for air!

Be well, dear Sylvia.
All our good wishes again for your birthday and every day.

Much love

Vera
